

SKOURAS BROS.
BUY THEATER SITE
ON 7TH AND LOCUST

Price Paid for the North-west Corner Said to Be Between $1,250,000 and $1,750,000.

FILM HOUSE TO HAVE CAPACITY OF 4000

Belief Evicted That Downtown District Is Becoming Center of Amusement Activity.

Evincing belief that downtown St. Louis is coming into its own as a center of amusement activity, Skouras Bros. Enterprises, movie house proprietors, today announced the purchase of a large lot at the northwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets for a new picture theater to seat 4000.

The price for the ground is understood to have been between $1,250,000 and $1,750,000, or between $250,000 and $350,000 per front foot for the 137-foot frontage on Locust street, in the heart of the shopping district. Real estate circles regard this as one of the highest prices paid for land in the central business district for 10 years.

To Have Largest Capacity.

Capacity of the theater, which will be called the Ambassador, will be the largest of any theater here. Whether the building will be devoted entirely to this purpose, or will have offices and stores, has not been determined. Other interests once had projected an unusually tall structure for this corner, but the zoning law interfered.

It is planned to spend more than $2,000,000 on the building and between $300,000 and $400,000 to equip it, including an organ to cost nearly $100,000. Thus the total cost of the project is estimated at $4,000,000.

The Locust street frontage is half the block, running to the alley alongside the Mercantile Trust Co. The Seventh street frontage of 145 feet is about two-thirds of that block. There are four old buildings now on the lots, which are partly vacant—one of five stories on the corner, a two-story on Locust and a five and a three on Seventh.

Purchase was made from the First National Co. investment company of the First National Bank, which was represented by F. O. Wainwright and N. A. McMillan. The Union Trust Co. had an interest and was represented by John F. Shepley. William R. Cady, real estate officer of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., who surveyed the district for a Skouras Bros. project, is doing the financing.

Rapp & Rapp, theater architects of Chicago, will design the new building. Construction is expected to start within six months and it is hoped to open the theater in May, 1934. Decorations and features of design are projected on an extensive scale. Skouras Bros. claim to the possibility of capacity matinee audiences downtown, and look to the proposed subway to help make this district a center of amusement life.

The Skouras brothers interested are Spyros, Charles and George Spyros, who is 31 years old, was a bus boy at the old Flamingo Hotel 10 years ago. Charles, who is 34, had the same sort of a job then at Hotel Jefferson. They entered the movie business on a small scale. Now they control the Grand Central, West End Lyric, Lyric and Capitol theaters and Lyric Skydome and a half interest in 13 neighborhood movies, as well as being district distributors for the First National Pictures Co., and controlling the release of pictures of several other producers.

INCOME PUBLICITY LAW TO BE TESTED IN THE COURTS

Attorney-General Plans an Action to Determine Right of Newspapers to Print Tax Lists.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Judicial determination of the right of newspapers to publish income tax returns opened to public inspection under the new revenue law will be made by the government through presentation of an "appropriate case" in the courts.

Details of the procedure to be followed and the name of the newspaper, editor or publisher selected as defendant, have been withheld by Attorney-General Clegg, but he announced late yesterday, without expressing an opinion as to the legality of publication of income tax payments, that the case would be filed at "an early convenient time."

The Attorney-General's statement follows:

"Section 257, subdivision (A) of the revenue act of 1924, provides, among other things, that income tax returns shall constitute public records; but they shall be open to inspection only upon order of the President and under rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary and approved by the President. Subdivision (B) of the same section makes it the duty of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 'as soon as practicable in each year' to cause to be prepared and made available to public inspection in each internal revenue district and in such other places as he may determine, lists of the names and the postoffice addresses of each person making an income tax return in such district together with the amount of the income tax paid by such person."

Penalty for Publication.

"Section 1018 of the same act re-enacted section 1187 of the revised statutes as amended, and provides, among other things, 'It shall be unlawful for any person to print or publish in any manner whatever not provided by law any income return, or any part thereof, or source of income, profits, losses or expenditures appearing in any income return, and any offense against the foregoing provision shall be a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $1000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, at the discretion of the court.'

"The effect of these provisions is to allow general inspection of income tax returns only under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the President. Subdivision B above referred to, however, makes it the duty of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to make available to public inspection in each internal revenue district and in such other places as he may determine lists containing only the postoffice address of the person making a return and the amount of income tax paid by such person."

"We are informed that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue has authorized the inspection of such lists only at the office of the collector in each internal revenue district. He has authorized no publication of such lists in the newspapers or otherwise. Publication of such information in newspapers and in the press appears not to have been authorized under the provision of section 257 (B)."

Early Court Action Promised.

"Section 2167 of the revised statutes, re-enacted in the act of 1924, makes it a criminal offense to print or publish in any manner whatever not provided by law, any part of any income tax return, or any part thereof, or source of income, profits, losses or expenditures appearing in such return, after it has made it the duty of the Commissioner to make available for public inspection the amount of income tax paid by each taxpayer, can only be surmised. The provision, however, is expressly made a part of the present tax law, and it appears clearly to be the duty of the Department of Justice to have an appropriate case presented in the courts so that the full force and effect of this provision may be judicially determined. This will be done at an early convenient date."

Club Paid For Actors' Trip to See Coolidge

William Burch of Washington representing the McCutcheon-Gerson syndicate, a subsidiary of the Shubert Theatrical Corporation, called on him and offered to sell the La Follette organization for $50,000 a publicity proposition, which would include lists worked into vaudeville programs favorable to the candidate.

Sympathized With La Follette.

The young man told me that they would prefer to sell the scheme to La Follette because they sympathized with his views," Gardner said, "and would be willing to sell it to La Follette at a lower figure than to either of the old parties."

He said he declined Burch's offer, saying "that is more money than La Follette has."

"I judged they sold the proposition to the Republicans," when he heard about the actors calling at the White House, including Al Jolson, John Drew and Charlotte Greenwood, who were mentioned in connection with the offer," said Gardner.

Offered Money for Speeches.

From that the committee moved on to charges that an effort had been made to hire labor men to take the stump for Coolidge.

Henry L. Ramm, a railroad fireman of Lawrence, Mass., a La Follette supporter, testified that H. Drew, a former supporter of La Follette, had offered him $11 a day and $11 for expenses to support Coolidge and make speeches for him. He said Drew promised that he would receive $1000 over his expenses for this work; that $250 would be placed in his hands at once. He quoted Drew as saying "that money was no object."

Similar offers, Ramm declared, had been made to other railroad men in Lawrence, and one had accepted it.

W. L. Bourland, counsel for the Republican National Committee, drew from Ramm a statement that he had solicited funds from labor unions at Lawrence, receiving $25 from the painters' union and $25 from the mill and shopen's union. He said the contributions were made as unions and not as individuals.

Grand Lodge Paying Expenses.

"Is the grand lodge paying your transportation and time loss by your presence here?" Bourland asked?

"Yes," he said.

"Do you know of any men being dismissed from the union because of their support of Coolidge?"

"No, but I have heard of men being dismissed for supporting La Follette."

"Where?"

"At the American Woolen Co. at Lawrence, Mass."

H. L. Brunson of Washington, a machinist, told the committee he had been delegated to raise contributions from the trade unions for La Follette and had received approximately $150,000 from the contributors who were workers throughout the country, who contributed $1.

"Six per cent of the fund was contributed by unions as such," he added.

Brunson said in reply to Bourland that he received a salary of $125 a week from the La Follette organization. He had not worked as a machinist for seven years, he said, but had been engaged in educational and political work.

"Do you not know that some of the mine unions in Illinois have levied special assessments for the La Follette campaign?" "No, I do not."

"Do you know of any referendum being taken by international organizations approving the action of the grand officers in supporting La Follette?" "No."

Groceries Contributions Sought.

Reading a circular sent out by the La Follette organization, Brunson said it contained a request for the recipients to ask their grocers to contribute to the fund. Brunson said appeals for funds had been made to people, "regardless of their political beliefs or religious faiths."

At the close of the morning session Senator Caraway issued subpoenas for W. H. Steed, district chairman of the United Association of Railway Employees, and Ottobaud, president of the shop crafts of the Northwestern Railway Co., both of Chicago, calling for their appearance here. They were summoned at the request of counsel for La Follette, who said they could testify regarding the "bribery of labor leaders."

RECORD VOTE IN ENGLAND DESPITE HEAVY RAINFALL

Women Electors Surprise Party Leaders With Great Number of Ballots Cast.

POLICE REPORT FEW DISTURBANCES

Noisy Demonstrations Honor Appearance of Candidates but No Grave Clashes Occur.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Three weeks of exhortations, warnings and appeals on the part of political leaders had their effect today when a vast army of British voters flocked to the polls to elect a new Parliament to succeed the one dissolved when the Labor government of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was defeated on the alternative of going before the country after defeat on the question of the Campbell prosecution.

Especially in the provincial districts, the voting was the heaviest in years. Reports from Bristol, where Arthur Henderson, Home Secretary, is fighting a singular battle for re-election, were that fully 90 per cent of the voters would cast ballots. A similar prediction was made in Derby, the scene of the fight for re-election of Colonial Secretary J. H. Thomas.

No Disturbance Reported.

Although heavy police details were stationed in districts where demonstrations were expected, only minor disorders were reported. While there were noisy demonstrations in many constituencies when the candidates appeared, no clashes came to the notice of the authorities.

The weather was bright in most of the districts this morning, but by noon the sky had become overcast and rain drenched the enthusiasm of one of the reluctant electors.

The women's vote, heavier than it had ever been before according to reports received this afternoon, was the feature of the balloting. The party leaders admitted that the women's vote, which had been an entirely unknown quantity, was the feature of the day, adding to the uncertainty as to the final outcome. This was especially true in the provincial constituencies, where the parties had devoted an important part of their campaign to efforts to gain the support of the women voters.

Intense Public Interest.

While some of the Laborites still expressed confidence that the result would show the people favoring the Conservatives, the general opinion was that the Government would be re-elected. The respective strength of the parties in the new house, however, was a subject on which few political observers ventured to give a public prediction.

Up to a few days ago, public interest in the outcome seemed apathetic, but the sensational election of a new Parliament, and the propaganda and organization of units within the British army and navy served to fan the sentiment against the Laborites because of their reputed lenient attitude toward the Communists.

$243,391 NOW SUBSCRIBED TO MASONIC TEMPLE FUND

Workers Meeting at Nona Today Report Funds $243,391 in Total.

Previous 24 hours.

A total of $243,391 has been subscribed to the fund now being collected for the new St. Louis Masonic temple, according to reports from a meeting at Hotel Statler at noon today. Of this sum, $243,391 was pledged in the 24 hours which preceded the meeting.

The drive began last Thursday and will continue through next Wednesday with a goal of $1,000,000, enough to complete the $1,000,000 temple now under construction on Lindell boulevard west of Grand. Four subscriptions of $2500 each have been received. Masonic chapters have contributed $2000 each, and E. H. Connelley has given a life subscription of $2500, the largest individual contribution.

Former Pugilist Killed

Jack O'Brien Shot in Terrible Fight in New York Room.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Jack O'Brien, former pugilist, called "Crooked Neck," because of a injury received in childhood, was shot early today in a "rooming house" which he was alleged to have operated in West Twentieth street. His death was heard, but no one was seen to leave the place.

The interior of the "rooming house" was a shambles, and the floor was overturned and glass was scattered about. The body of O'Brien, who was 41 years old, retired from the ring when he was married about eight years ago. He was a flyweight and claimed to have won 100 fights.

GOULD MILLIONS FAILED TO SAVE MISSOURI PACIFIC

Edwin Testifies Cotton Boll Road Was Only One to Survive the War With E. H. Harriman.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Millions were dumped into the Missouri Pacific Railroad enterprise from 1911 until the line went into receivership after its fight with E. H. Harriman, with full consent of the Jay Gould estate trustees, Edwin Gould, one of the executors and trustees, admitted under questioning today in the Gould accounting suit hearing before Referee James A. O'Gorman.

The estate had hoped, Gould testified, that the necessary aid would come from other sources, including the general public, but it failed to materialize. He denied that his brother George seemed to be "a man of ambition" and declared that George's every move was discussed with his fellow trustees. The family "looked at the road as more or less," he said.

The witness also asserted that at the time he was president of the St. Louis Southwestern, which was independent of what was considered the "Gould system," his opinion was that the estate would refuse him financial aid, but that that line was the only road of all to survive war with Harriman.

Howard Gould, Edwin's brother, will be unable to come from Europe to testify at the hearings on account of ill health, O'Gorman was informed by cablegram through Howard's attorneys today.

"Is that what we discovered this week that the Democratic Senator of my State running for re-election is trading Davis votes for Senator La Follette's support?"

"How do you expect to meet it?" "By advertising and any other way the committee decides. A circular of Senator La Follette, closing Walsh's card (Frank Walsh is dangerous for the Democrats of Massachusetts)." "The weather was bright in most of the districts this morning, but soon the sky had become overcast and rain drenched the enthusiasm of one of the reluctant voters."

Divided Massachusetts Funds.
Taking up a letter sent out by the committee, Caraway quoted as saying, "There will be no limit to the contributions received by the committee," that "very large contributions would be divided so as to conform to the law."

Liggett said the Massachusetts law restricted contributions by an individual for the support of a State candidate to $10,000, and that all over that amount received by the committee would be turned over to the National Committee.

"Did you get any contribution over $10,000?" Caraway asked.

"What did you do with it?" "I gave the State Committee $10,000 and the other to the National Committee."

Republican State Chairman Stokes of New Jersey, Morris New York and Baker of Pennsylvania have been subpoenaed to appear tomorrow before the committee. Others subpoenaed include Horbach, Republican Committee Chairman for Connecticut, Joseph R. Grundy of Pennsylvania has been recalled.

Blaze Believed to Have Started by Spark From Locomotive in National City Plant.

Fire, believed to have been started by a spark from a locomotive, destroyed property valued at from $25,000 to $30,000 at the Armour packing plant in National City at 10 a. m. today.

A 200-foot chute leading from the sheep house to the slaughtering plant comprised the major portion of the loss. In addition, six carloads of hay in the tracks beside the chute were consumed and a large quantity of machinery stored beneath the chute was wrecked. Frederick Bareis, general manager of the National Stockyards, who estimated the loss, said the fire would not interfere with operation of the Armour plant.

This fire was the twelfth in East St. Louis and vicinity within 24 hours. Early yesterday a blaze of undetermined origin partially destroyed the Winansley warehouse, a one-story brick building at Twenty-first street and St. Clair avenue, with a loss of $10,000. The warehouse was stored with stacked alfalfa feed. The other blazes were mostly in small outbuildings.

HOW GOVERNOR HYDE SOLD STOCK AND KEPT IT, TOO

to the appointment in the place of another man whom Howell had at first desired. Chorn formerly was State Insurance Superintendent.

The negotiations for the sale of the Liberty National to the Mountain States were conducted over a period of more than a month, and hung fire before Sept. Hyde and the Insurance Superintendents of Oklahoma and Arkansas for 10 days after being formally submitted. For one reason or another, approval was delayed from time to time. The deal finally was consummated Aug. 28, which was the date the Hyde stock was obtained. Virtually all of the other Liberty National stock had been obtained at a much lower price long before Chorn turned the deal for the Governor.

Charles G. Wilson, secretary of the Commercial Club of Cape Girardeau, was one of the Liberty National stockholders whose holdings were not taken over. He held only a few shares. Wilson is an authority for the statement that the offer made by representatives of the Mountain States for the Liberty National stock was on a basis of an exchange of stock, $8 of Mountain States for $100 of Liberty National.

"I was offered only Mountain States stock on that basis," Wilson said, "and so far as I know, and I have talked with a number of the stockholders, the others were not offered cash, only stock."

"I have heard of the deal by which the Governor was paid cash at a considerably higher figure than offered by the rest of us, but have no personal knowledge of that transaction."

Officers of the Mountain States Co., communicated with in an effort to obtain a detailed statement of the whole deal, have refused to discuss it for publication.

WOMAN WANTED IN TAXI DRIVER'S MURDER FOUND

Miss Olga Muskoff Tells Police of Being With John Mantkowski the Night He Was Slain.

Gossip around a factory at the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., where she was employed, led to the arrest last night of the blond young woman whom the police had been seeking since last Thursday night in connection with the murder of John Mantkowski. Red Top taxicab chauffeur, who was shot to death in a saloon at 3036 Washington boulevard.

The woman, Miss Olga Muskoff, 27 years old, of 2811A Marcus avenue, had confided in a fellow worker that she was the one who accompanied the chauffeur to the saloon and fled from the place after the shooting. The fellow worker had confided in others and yesterday the rumor reached Lieut. Aylward of the Homicide Bureau. Detectives took her into custody at her home and after questioning he obtained a confession, in which she told of a taxicab ride with three men and of seeing Mantkowski's body on the floor in the saloon while over him stood Michael Jones with a revolver.

Her story, which tallied in most details with that previously related by Joseph ("Red") O'Connor, who was arrested the day after the killing, came after she had been confronted by O'Connor at Police Headquarters.

Miss Muskoff had been friendly with Mantkowski for several months, she said, and last Thursday night had an appointment to meet him at 47th street and Washington avenue. He met her there and led her to his taxicab two blocks away, in which a man and Louise starts early in the morning of April 1923, and much of the loot was found afterward in the suburban home of "Whitney" Doering, now dead.

James E. Carroll, as counsel for Coburn, said that the indictment was changed today to a motion to quash. PLEA OF GUILTY BY DUMMEYER IN MAIL THEFT CASE

Stock Broker Admits Complicity in $260,000 Robbery—Sentence to Be Passed Next Monday.

John Dummeier, a stock broker, this afternoon pleaded guilty to the charge of complicity in the $260,000 downtown robbery of an armored mail truck, for which he and William P. (Dinty) Colbeck and nine others were arraigned in the Federal District Court.

Dummeier, who has lived at the Melbourne and other hotels, pleaded guilty to one count of the indictment, alleging that he had in his possession, after the robbery, some of the stolen property, negotiable industrial bonds. The other counts were dismissed, and he stated that sentence would be passed on Dummeier next Monday afternoon.

Colbeck, who is in Fifth Ward Democratic committee and political leader of the Egan gang, and nine others, went to trial after Dummeier's plea. The others are Walter A. Kelly, blind lawyer; five (Chippy) Robinson, Charles (Red) Smith, Steve Ryan, Oliver Dougherty, Leo Cronin, Max Simpson, Rudolph Schmidt and Roy Tipton.

Before the trial began, previous indictments against Gus Dietzner and "Cotton" Eppelheimer, charging them with complicity in the robbery, were dismissed, thus leaving the two from all connection with the case. At the same time three of the defendants—Smith, Robinson and Ryan—who have been at liberty on bond, were ordered placed in custody until they give further bonds of $60,000 each. This was because they furnished bond on a previous indictment only, and not on the indictment now on trial.

The robbery took place at Fourth and Locust streets early in the morning of April 1923, and much of the loot was found afterward in the suburban home of "Whitney" Doering, now dead.

James E. Carroll, as counsel for Coburn, said that the indictment was changed today to a motion to quash. In this motion it was alleged that the indictment of Coburn and four others, yesterday filed a plea in abatement, which was changed today to a motion to quash.

Willed Fund to Dress Girls in High School

Paul A. Ewert, Millionaire Lawyer and Oil Man of Joplin, Mo., Had No Daughters.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 29.—Poor girls in Joplin, Mo., who have not enough money to buy clothing suitable to wear to high school no longer need worry: the clothing will be provided for them.

In the will of Paul A. Ewert, a millionaire attorney and oil man, who died here Oct. 20, a bequest of $10,000 is set aside for the purchase of clothing for needy girls in the will, filed yesterday for probate, Ewert declared. "I have no daughters of my own and, in my life, it has been my joy to assist needy young girls in acquiring an education. It is my desire this work shall continue."

"I therefore bequeath to the Board of Education in Joplin, Mo., $10,000 to be invested and preferred stock of some good industrial corporation, the interest to be used annually for the purpose of buying necessary clothing for poor girls graduating from the grade schools to the high school of this city."

Requests ranging from $1000 to $10,000 are left to friends, relatives and institutions. Mrs. Sidney Ewert the widow, is bequeathed $100,000 and a life interest in the residuary estate, which after her death is to go to Ewert's native town of Pipestone, Minn. for the erection of a T. M. U. A. building and to the city of Joplin.

The total value of the estate is estimated at approximately $1,000,000.

Among other bequests are: Woodson Price of St. Louis, $25,000; city of Joplin, $3000 for the building of a swimming pool for negroes.

5 DIE IN BLAST ON CANADIAN TRAIN; PLOT SUSPECTED

Explosion Laid to Conspiracy Against Head of Doukhobor Colony Who Is Killed.

By the Associated Press.
VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 29.—J. L. Mackie, British Columbia legislator; Peter Verigin, head of the Doukhobor colony of British Columbia, and three unidentified persons were killed today in an explosion on a Canadian Pacific Railway passenger train, west of Fern Station, B. C. Eleven other persons were injured.

Officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Winnipeg believe that the explosion was the result of a death plot against Verigin. Provincial police are investigating the case.

Officers of the railway, after an examination of the ruins of the car in which the explosion occurred, said that the explosion happened inside the car and could not have resulted from a gas tank, as was first reported.

The explosion happened in the first-class passenger coach of train No. 11 on the Nelson-Cirand route. The train left Nelson last night for Vancouver. The explosion set fire to the car, which was consumed. The remainder of the train proceeded to Grand Forks with its passengers and with five of the injured.

90-POUND TOPAZ ON VIEW IN CHICAGO MUSEUM

It Is Large Enough to Make 200-120 Rings of One Carat Each—Found in Brazil.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—A white topaz, weighing 90 pounds, large enough to make 205,120 dinner rings of one carat in size, and said to be the largest precious gem yet discovered, has been placed on exhibition in the Field Museum here.

It was brought from Marambaia, Minas, Brazil by O. C. Farrington, head of the museum's department of geology. If placed on the market the stone would supply the demand for this variety of topaz for many years, museum officials said.

MYSTERY CHILDREN ON LINER

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Two mysterious children, a boy of 3½ years and his sister, 2½, arrived from the Canal Zone on the steamship Manchuria today.

The waifs, shoeless and clothed in cotton garments suited to tropical climates, could tell nothing of themselves except their names—Tom and Ida Kelpa. Officials of the Panama Pacific Steamship Co., owners of the Manchuria, said an investigation had revealed that the pair had been brought aboard at the Pedro Miguel lock in the canal by a man wearing the uniform of the United States army, who left his charges with the matron. The children had prepaid New York tickets which had been purchased at the company's office here. The children presented another perplexing problem to immigration officials.

ADVERTISERS AT BREAKFAST WITH THE PRESIDENT

Government a Humanitarian Institution With Interest in Welfare of All, Coolidge Says.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—President Coolidge assured a group of advertisers who called at the White House today to pledge their support that he proposed to maintain an administration devoted to economy, peace and prosperity.

"The Government is a great business institution," the President said, "but it is more than that—it is a great humanitarian institution with an interest in the welfare of all the people."

The advertisers, members of the Coolidge-Dawes National Advertisers League, called at the White House for breakfast with the President and Mrs. Coolidge. After breakfast the party went to the south room of the White House, where pictures were taken and where spokesmen of the group assured the President of their support.

Frank B. Freese, president of the league, spoke for the speakers. Rhinelanders, organizer of the Coolidge-Dawes Nonpartisan Club of New York, was in charge of the party.

Mr. Coolidge, who friends yesterday had defined his attitude on all important phases of Government administration, both in his speech of acceptance of the nomination and the address he delivered last week here before the Senate Division of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and did not consider specific replies necessary to any charges which may be made against either himself or the various departments of the Government in the last week of the campaign.

Meanwhile, he made it known he was making his plans to coordinate with indications to him that the Republican national ticket would be elected. Information reaching the White House can lead to no other expectation, he told visitors.

Former Board of Trade Head Dies.
CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Hiram M. Sager, for 40 years a member of the Board of Trade and its president in 1907 and 1908, died today. Sager was 65 years old and was the son of a cotton importer of Liverpool, England, where he was born. The family moved to America in 1888. Sager first was associated with the old mill firm of Norton & Co., from 1884 to 1890, and then became associated with J. H. Dole & Co., one of the oldest grain firms in the city, and he had been president of the company for a number of years.

When Mrs. Etta Holmes of 1035 Howard street entered the grocery of Ansel Caudle, next door to her home, a week ago she found the grocer and his wife involved in an argument and intervened as peacemaker. She was thrown out of the store and got a black eye in the process.

Today her husband, Charles L. Holmes, went to the store to demand an apology and when it was not forthcoming, drew a revolver and shot Caudle in the hip. The homicide squad found Holmes waiting for them and outside the store they found Caudle seriously wounded. The revolver lay beside him.

Mrs. Caudle contended that her husband was shooting her because he was afraid of his assault upon Mrs. Holmes was unjustified. He had been drinking, she said.

Caudle was taken to the city hospital. He contended that the blow which blackened Mrs. Holmes' eye was struck accidentally.

ATTERBURY SLATED TO HEAD PENN. RAILWAY

Promotory to New Post, Preparatory to Succeeding Rea When Latter Retires.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—W. W. Atterbury is being groomed to assume the presidency of the Pennsylvania Railroad, when Samuel Rea relinquishes that office Sept. 20 next by virtue of having reached the company's seventy-year age limit.

This is what the directors of the road implied yesterday, when they met and created a new office, to be known as vice president, and promoted Atterbury, who has been with the system 38 years, from vice president in charge of operations, to fill the new executive post.

Further, the action of the board is looked upon in railroad circles as the serving of notice by the Pennsylvania to the other three railroads embraced in the "Big Four" of the Eastern railroad world that the Pennsylvania is preparing to fight what it considers rights in the allotment of roads in the proposed re-grouping plan for the East.

Plans for Philadelphia Terminal. The board's action also made it plain that the railroad intends to push forward rapidly its plans for a new passenger station to be built on the west bank of the Schuylkill River in this city. This projected work, together with improvements contemplated in that section by the city, is expected to result in the expenditure of nearly $100,000,000.

Elisha Lee, vice president of the central region, with headquarters at Pittsburgh, was advanced to fill the vacancy created by Atterbury's elevation.

Rea, in announcing the directors' action, stated that Atterbury will aid him in dealing with important railroad questions and in the general supervision of the company's affairs and business, including all the departments in the Pennsylvania System and that in Rea's absence Atterbury will act for him.

Atterbury's Attitude on Labor. In railroad circles, while the action came somewhat as a surprise, it was generally agreed that the action of the directors in creating the new office and electing Atterbury to it will serve to set aside reports that have been circulated in the last year.

These reports were to the effect that someone other than Atterbury would become president of the Pennsylvania upon Rea's retirement. These reports were built up largely upon Atterbury's attitude toward labor. He considered the shopmen's strike as unwarranted, in view of the then existing relations between the company and the great majority of its employees.

For this reason he maintained an attitude of the "company first" throughout the labor troubles. There were some, however, high in the councils of the company who were fearful of an adverse reaction being the result of Atterbury's attitude. Nevertheless, the company came through the strike and in a short time was handling the largest volume of traffic ever carried on its lines.

The changing complex in the Eastern railroad territory since the advent of O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, with their Nickel Plate System mergers, possibly was one of the most important reasons that prompted yesterday's action by the Pennsylvania directors.

SMALL FIRE IN CITY HALL BASEMENT CAUSES EXCITEMENT

Waste Paper Becomes Ignited, Causing Much Smoke. Damage Is Small.

A small fire, with much smoke, in the basement of the city hall caused considerable excitement shortly before noon today. Some waste paper cast on a coal pile in the boiler room was ignited in some unknown manner, and the smoke which rolled from the windows attracted a crowd of several hundred.

Firemen with chemicals extinguished the blaze in less than five minutes. Fire Chief Panzer, in his office directly over the blaze, said there was practically no property damage.

WOMAN DIES FROM POISON

Takes Drug in Room in Hotel and Succumbs Soon After.

Mrs. Helen Hutchinson, 28 years old, died at city hospital at 4 a. m. today of poison taken in a room at the Pershing Hotel, 1508 Market street, at 1:30 a. m.

At the hospital she said she was married to Ralph Hutchinson, 121 West Twenty-first street, New York, from whom she was separated. When she took the poison Mrs. Hutchinson was a guest of Mrs. Frances Jones in the hotel, who told police that the woman was also known here as Marie Daugherty and Marie Kay. She left no explanation.

Former St. Louis Teacher Dead.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. CHESTER, Ill., Oct. 28.—Miss Edwina Moore, former teacher of art in St. Louis schools, died yesterday evening after a lingering illness at the home of her aunt, Miss Clem Entine Cole, in this city. Burial will be tomorrow in Chester.

Three Residences Robbed.

Jewelry valued at $800 and $50 in cash was stolen by burglars from the home of Harry C. Schaefer, 2514 North Taylor avenue, in the absence of the family last night. Other burglaries reported were in the homes of Mrs. Minnie Cooperman, 1427 Webster avenue, $155 cash, and Harry Appelman, 3040 Sher-

"Who are Your Bankers?"

—a simple question, but the man who asks the question is always well impressed if you answer with the name of a large and widely-known bank. If you are doing business with his bank, your prospects are brighter in proportion to the good opinion he gains of your business judgment.

A man gives a good reference when he names an influential bank such as the First National in St. Louis, the largest National Bank West of the Mississippi. A check drawn on this prominent institution is a real business asset.

When you are a customer of this bank you can always answer with pride—"My bank is the First National."

CUSTOMERS QUIT WHEN WIFE SOUGHT DIVORCE

George L. Zimmerer, Wealthy
Real Estate Agent, Makes Deposition in Case.

George L. Zimmerer, wealthy real estate dealer, says he has not seen a customer in his office in the Wainwright Building for a month. The reason, he explained in a deposition, is the publicity involved in the divorce suit of his wife, Mrs. Emily Zimmerer, of 5220 Washington boulevard, in which she named two women, one a burlesque prima donna, as co-defendants.

Zimmerer, who estimated his wealth at $100,000, could not recall the name of Mrs. Maud Frank of 4043A South Grand boulevard, or that of her husband, Peter, who has sued him for $100,000 for alienation of affections. His memory improved at the mention of Miss Eda Mae Smith, prima donna of "The Golden Cuckoo," which recently played at a local burlesque theater.

Miss Smith, or Eda Mae, as she appears on the burlesque program, came into Zimmerer's life eight or nine years ago, he said. He was introduced to her by friends and took a great interest in her because of her youth and talent.

Gave Her $1800
"So far as I know, she is as good as God ever made a soul," he volunteered emphatically.

In all Zimmerer gave Miss Smith $1800 to help in her career. "She was out of a job and living with her mother in Chicago, so I sent her a check each month for $15 months," he testified. I have beautiful letters from her. Finally, two months ago, when this trouble came up, I just didn't have the money, so I stopped. She had a good job and understood my situation.

Zimmerer said he was 54 years old and resided at the Missouri Athletic Association. Eda Mae, he said, was "over 31." He separated from his wife in December, 1917, after a written agreement by which he was to pay a fixed sum each month. "I didn't separate from her; she forced me to go," he said. Mrs. Zimmerer, in her deposition, declared she was forced to spend her own money to pay household bills and support their three children. Her father stayed with them and paid $100 a month board.

"One Would Have to Leave."
"I told him one of us would have to leave," she testified. "I couldn't make him go; it was his house."

In her petition, she placed Zimmerer's wealth at $150,000 and seeks to restrain him from disposing of his property. At the time the suit was filed he was seeking to adopt Miss Smith, but later abandoned this proceeding. The depositions were taken before Commissioner Charles J. Riley in the Arcade Building.

Federal Hospital Board Formed.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—A Federal Hospital Board was established today to co-ordinate the separate Government hospital activities of the army medical corps, the navy bureau of medicine and surgery, the public health service, the national home for disabled volunteer soldiers, the office of the Indian affairs, and the veterans' bureau. Director Hines of the veterans' bureau is chairman.

Official Killed in Auto.
By the Associated Press.
WELLAND, Ont., Oct. 23.—George Vanderlip, 73 years old, president of the City Tax Commission, was killed and three others were injured when their automobile went into a ditch and burned today on the Hamilton-Welland road.

SOVIETS MAKE A CORDIAL REPLY TO FRENCH NOTE

local appointment of Ambassadors.

"In notifying you of this recognition, which cannot affect any engagement entered into or treaties signed by France, the Government of the republic believes in the possibility of a general agreement between our two countries, of which the resumption of diplomatic relations is a preface."

"In this respect it wishes to be understood that it expressly reserves the rights of French citizens acquired under obligations contracted by Russia for its dependents under anterior regimes, obligations the respect of which are guaranteed by the general principles of law, which are for us the rule of international life. The same reservations apply to responsibilities assumed since 1914 by Russia toward the French state or its dependents."

"In this spirit the Government of the republic, faithful once more to serve to the utmost the interests of peace and the future of Europe, designs to seek with the union a just and practicable settlement which will permit restoration between the two nations of useful relations and normal exchanges, when the French conscience shall have received the appeasement to which it is entitled."

"As soon as you have made known your assent to opening negotiations of a general order, and more particularly of an economic order, we shall welcome in Paris your delegates, furnished with full powers to meet our negotiators."

"Until a satisfactory conclusion of the negotiations, the treaties, conventions and arrangements having existed between France and French citizens and Russia shall not have effected the individual regulations formed before the establishment of soviet power, between Frenchmen and Russians will remain as hitherto and the auditing of account between the two states shall be deferred in all respects, all measures of conservation in France being taken or about to be taken.

"Finally, it must be understood once for all that non-intervention in internal affairs shall rule in the relations between the two countries."

DAVIS CAUTIONS NEGROES AGAINST PARTY SLAVERY

Says Race Will Count Politically When It Demonstrates It Is Not Mere Shock Force.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Carrying his campaign into the populous sections of New York's East Side and Bronx districts for three speeches, John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for the presidency, last night again predicted a Democratic victory for the national and State tickets. He assailed scandals and corruption in government, and emphasized his declaration that "the time has come for the people to face about and get back on sound principles of democracy instead of the quagmire of privilege."

"We Democrats believe," Davis said, "that it is vitally important that the American people this year should return to Democratic principles, to Democratic ideals and should embrace once more that great Democratic motto that 'a public office is a public trust,' and there is but one rule for government and that is the rule of 'equal rights to all men and special privilege to none.'"

Equality of opportunity for all, regardless of race, creed or color was advocated by Davis in an address delivered in Harlem before a capacity crowd of negroes.

The future of the colored man in the United States, Davis said, "lies in his political independence," and he cautioned that political equality would not be achieved by him until "you shake off anything that remotely resembles political slavery."

Equality of Opportunity.
The candidate declared for "equality of opportunity for every man in this country and for every man who comes to live in this country."

This declaration was received with cheers which swelled in volume when the candidate added that he also believed in "equality of right" for all men in the sense that they should stand before the law on the same basis.

"The underlying principle of democracy, the great principle that breathes through the Democratic party," Davis said, "is the principle of equal and exact rights for all men and special privilege to none."

"And," he added, "there is no limitation in that motto of race or creed or color, and I for one will never write such a limitation there."

Each point emphasized by the candidate was the signal for a noisy demonstration of approval. Davis was required several times to wait until he might be heard above the clapping of hands and shouts from the throng.

Particularly was this so when Davis said he had at the beginning of the campaign promised friends that he proposed "to leave no uncertainty as to my determination to enforce the Constitution of the United States and all the laws made in pursuance of it," enumerating in turn the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments.

Negroes' Stake in Country.
"And now, my friends," Davis continued, "it is a great stake that you of your race have got in this country. Why should you have? You have ploughed its fields, you have raised its crops, you have built its houses, you have helped to clothe and to feed and nurse your fellow-citizens, and your blood equally with the blood of your white brethren has flowed in defense of the flag we love. Why shouldn't you feel it to be your duty as much as the duty of any other people to guard its institutions, to care for its future and to protect and preserve the institutions that foster you to defend it. When that day comes, you will count for something in American politics."

"I am not here tonight to advise any man as to his duty, but I do believe profoundly that the political future of the colored man in the United States lies in an exhibition of political independence. Whenever the colored man is ready to demonstrate, and I think the day is coming more rapidly than most of us imagine, that he is not the mere shock troops of any political party, that he is not to be thrown into the forefront of the battle and sacrificed until the reserves can be called up, but that he is ready to fight as an intelligent citizen, forming his own opinion and making ready to defend it. When that day comes, you will count for something in American politics."

At this point a voice called out "Next Tuesday," the candidate asking in turn, "What is it you want in this country?" "An honest man for President," another in the audience yelled. "Well," Davis interjected, "I will change the question and ask what you hope to obtain by putting an honest man in office?" Then came the cry of "equal rights," and Davis said:

Equal Rights Before Law.
"That is the answer and it is the answer every American ought to make. What we want in this country first of all, for every man born under the American flag, and for every man who leaves his home land and comes to live beneath it, is equality of opportunity. We want every man to feel, and every woman, too, that honesty and thrift and industry and upright living may bring him a happier day tomorrow than he saw today. And that we may have that equality of opportunity, we must have something else with it, and that is equality of right, that every man shall stand before the law on exactly the same terms as any other man, that wherever the Government touches the citizen or wherever the citizen touches the Government there shall be no notice taken of race or creed or color or anything else save good character and obedience to the laws."

Cites Labor Record.
In one of his speeches Davis called attention to the record of the Democratic party on labor, recalling that it had written on the statute books of the United States that labor is not a commodity or an article of commerce. The Democratic party, he said, recognized for the first time by law the right of laborers to organize for their own improvement and gave to the workers the law protecting them against abuse of the writ of injunction. The right of trial by jury also was named as a contribution to labor from the Democratic party.

Discussing business conditions generally, Davis said the party he represented had been the author of the Federal reserve law which, he added, had proved a great boon to business at all times since its enactment and particularly during the World War.

The candidate discussed in passing "the scandals and corruption" which he charged had prevailed in Washington during the late three and a half years and repeated again his promise that when elected he would arrange the affairs of government so that honesty in government would be assured. From information in his possession, Davis said he was convinced of a Democratic victory. Not only would the national ticket win, he said, but a Democratic Congress would be elected and the New York State ticket, headed by Gov. Alfred E. Smith, would win.

SLAIN WOMAN WAS SISTER OF JULIA BEAM

Finding of Body in Old
Mine Recalls Tragic
Story of Girl Tamed 33
Years Ago.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Thirty-three years ago all New Jersey and a large part of the nation were stirred by the tragic story of Julia Beam.

Publicly labeled an outcast from birth, she had loved often, but rarely with wisdom. In the curious fashion in which such things take hold of the public imagination she was hailed far and wide as a sort of Magdalen. Then, one day a band of puritanically-minded folk tarred and feathered Julia Beam, and the wave of controversy that followed the act filled columns in the newspapers.

Yesterday, Julia Beam's sister, Mrs. Frank Thomas, of Rocky Run, was found slain near Glen Gardner, N. J., in the gloomy shaft of an abandoned iron mine near Oxford, N. J. A bullet hole in her heart and another in her right cheek showed how she had died.

Discovery of Mrs. Thomas' tragic end recalled the fateful career of Julia Beam. For eight years Mrs. Thomas and her husband, a section hand employed by the New Jersey Central Railroad, had striven to make a successful home.

Although respected by everyone in the small community in which he lived, Thomas' wages were not large, and either because of this or for other reasons, police say he told them, his hopes for an ideal home life were not realized.

A few days ago his wife, police say he asserted, disappeared with the deed to their small home, which he had given her after much argument.

Yesterday not only did police find her body in the shaft, but near by they found three burlap bags in which was every piece of personal property she had owned. Necklaces, vanity bags, hats, darning yarn, pictures, trinkets and even a small Testament which she sometimes read—all were there, as was a stained bed sheet which, police believe, had covered her as she lay in bed when she was shot. Thomas, protesting he knows nothing about the crime, was locked up last night in the county jail in Belvidere, N. J., while a score of detectives, as well as State troopers tried to build up their theory of the crime. They admitted they had not been entirely successful in this, but at the same time they said that they had uncovered several facts that they consider significant.

CALLES INVITES CAPITALISTS,
BUT NOT 'PIRATES,' TO MEXICO

President-Elect Promises New Yorkers the "Well-Intentioned" Will Get Legal Protection.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—"Well-intentioned" capitalists were invited to help develop Mexico's resources, and were given promises of legal protection, friendly co-operation and a cordial welcome by Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, President-elect of Mexico, speaking here last night at a dinner given in his honor by the Board of Trade and the Manufacturers' Association.

The President-elect, who is making a brief stay here prior to departing for his inauguration ceremonies at home, asserted that his Government will omit "no sacrifice or effort to achieve the betterment of the working classes, and I invite the well-intentioned industrialists and capitalists—not aggressive and practical capitalism—to join with me in this task of the reconstructive development of the people."

Gen. Calles said he thought big business enterprises were becoming more humanitarian and less utilitarian. This growing idealism, he said, was one of the causes of the improvement in the relations between the United States and Mexico.

Besides the satisfaction of having done a humanitarian service, American business men would be materially enriched, he declared, by entering the Mexican field.

AUTO OWNER ARRESTED ON WOMAN'S COMPLAINT

Denies Charge of Attack and Says Stenographer Was Willing Participant in Flirtation.

Miss Hilda Demarset, 25 years old, a stenographer, of 3511 Franklin avenue, complained to police at 11 o'clock last night that she was attacked by a man in his automobile in Forest Park. She gave an automobile license number, the owner of which was arrested.

Miss Demarset, who has been married and divorced, said she got into the automobile, which she thought was a service car, at Delmar boulevard and Euclid avenue, at 10 o'clock and was driven to Forest Park against her will.

The man denied the charge. He said the affair began as a flirtation, in which the woman was a willing participant.

HOOVER REVIEWS U. S. ECONOMICS OF 1923

Says Year Saw Full Employment, Slump in Imports, and Farm Depression.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Activities of the United States in world commerce which have transformed the country from a debtor to a creditor nation, were discussed by Secretary Hoover yesterday in a statement before the second annual year book of world trade issued by the Commerce Department.

The year book contains a general survey of world trade for 1923, presenting for the first time complete statistics and a summary of fundamental economic data in all the foreign countries where American products find their market. It was issued in response to a demand from American business interests for a consolidation of all such data, to aid them in laying out long range programs for the stabilization of business and industry so as to minimize the economic losses resulting from the recurrent extremes of the business cycle.

Secretary Hoover's statement declared that the year 1923, from the economic point of view, was characterized by three major features as follows:

1. Full employment of labor and the continuance, especially during the early part of the year, of the upward swing of the business cycle in nearly all branches of industry and domestic trade under the lead of the construction industries.

2. The continuance, as was expected, of the narrowing of the balance of trade, or excess of exports over imports.

3. The continuance of a considerable degree of depression in certain branches of agriculture, although in other branches the situation improved.

No Unemployment.

"Throughout the year," the Secretary declared, "there was practically no unemployment, and wages continued at remunerative levels. Production of manufacturing, mining and forest industries during 1923 surpassed that of any previous year, and on the average was at least one-fifth greater than in 1922. Although there was some recession during the later months of the year, the output of these industries in the last quarter was greater than during the corresponding quarter of 1922. Construction, especially of residential buildings, the expansion of which had given the first impetus to general industrial recovery from the depression of 1921, showed great activity throughout the year, the volume surpassing any previously recorded."

"The business activity of the past year, however, did not take on the characteristics of an unhealthy speculative boom. There was no violent inflation of prices and credit, or any undue accumulation of stocks. A spirit of caution, born of the general European situation, and our domestic agriculture situation, dominated the business world. The general level of wholesale prices continued until April the gradual but small rise manifested during 1922; thereafter it fell off slightly. While the average for the year as a whole was a little higher than for the preceding year, the price level at the close of 1923 was a trifle lower than in the previous December. The year was one of advancing standards of living throughout all sections, except some branches of agriculture."

Exports Exceeded Imports.

During the early months of 1923 the shift in the relation of exports to imports, which had been going on for some time, continued until for the three months March to May the imports of commodities actually exceeded exports materially. Thereafter was noted a decline in imports and increase in exports, but for the year as a whole, the excess of commodity exports over imports ($176,000,000) was only half as great as in 1922. There was also a large net importation ($296,000,000) of gold and silver, and the excess of combined exports of merchandise and precious metals over imports was the smallest since 1910.

"Although the large imports of the first half of 1923 were abnormal, some diminution, as compared with war years and pre-war years in the excess of exports is quite what was to be expected. It is the result of the changed position of this country in the world. From a debtor we have become a creditor nation. We no longer have to pay a large balance to foreigners for ocean transportation. Our population has increased materially, and our standard of living likewise has advanced, so that we demand more raw materials and tropical foodstuffs from abroad and that we consume more of our own materials and foodstuffs. Finally, during the past two years, the United States has been sought extensively as a field for investment of capital from countries with depreciated currency. All of these causes have tended to bring about a closer balance between exports and imports than formerly existed."

Farmer Still a Sufferer.

The net balance of trade and invisible items against the United States in 1923 was but a third of that for 1922, the Secretary declared.

"While for large fractions of the agricultural community the year 1923 witnessed a continuance of the advance in prices and improvement in market conditions which had characterized 1922," he continued, "the situation of certain classes of the agricultural population, particularly wheat growers and cattle and hog raisers, continued unsatisfactory. The general level of prices of farm products as a group has advanced more rapidly during the past two years than that of non-agricultural commodities, although as compared with pre-war years the farmers still stand below their normal relationship.

"The low price of wheat has been primarily due to the greatly increased production stimulated by the war in this country, in other wheat exporting countries, and above all, Canada. The growth of our population is tending slowly to bring about an equilibrium between domestic production and consumption of agricultural commodities as a group. Meantime wheat acreage has been reduced for several years, the number of animals bred is now falling off, and other adjustments are taking place which will tend to correct that unbalancing of our agricultural industry which resulted from the war."

NAVY'S WAR OIL STORAGE PLAN NOT TOLD TO CONGRESS

Rear Admiral Gregory Testifies in Government Suit to Cancel Doheny Leases

By the Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 23.—

War plans in connection with the storage base at Pearl Harbor and other points were not submitted before Congress and it is not deemed desirable to give out details concerning them, it was testified today by Rear Admiral Luther E. Gregory, Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks of the Navy Department, as a witness in the Government suit here to cancel $100,000,000 leases and contracts in Elk Hills naval oil reserve No. 1 to the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Co.

These contracts, which the Government charges were granted in a conspiracy to defraud the Government and in negotiation of which it is charged that Edward L. Doheny, controlling factor of the oil company, gave $100,000 to Albert F. Fall, the Secretary of the Interior, embrace construction of naval fuel oil storage facilities at Pearl Harbor. Admiral Gregory was called as a Government witness in the case.

Admiral's Testimony.

Owen J. Roberts, Government counsel, asked the naval officer what the war plans called for prior to the granting of these contracts in 1922.

"For an appropriation of $100,000,000 to develop storage bases in war plans," the Admiral replied. "Details of which the department does not care to give out."

"Were plans for the first 'and second projects submitted to Congress?' asked Roberts, referring to the first Pan-American contract for a 1,500,000-barrel fuel oil storage base, and the second or supplemental contract, raising this to a 4,200,000-barrel capacity. "They were not," the Admiral replied.

Large maps of the Pearl Harbor base indicating the storage base plans were presented as evidence. In referring to "marine barracks," Admiral Gregory said that marines were not to be stationed there, but that the barracks would be used by the personnel operating the base.

Prior to the first project the 1,500,000-barrel storage base contract, there were no fuel-oil storage facilities for future use of the navy on the west coast, all facilities being for storage only of oil for present use, Admiral Gregory testified.

Describes His Part in Closing One Contract.

In his testimony yesterday Edward C. Finney, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, described Fall as being eager to obtain information on naval oil reserves which as yet had not been turned over to the control of his department; impatient over delays in the granting of leases and contracts and anxious to avoid giving any publicity to the transactions.

Upon cross-examination by Frank J. Hogan, counsel for the Doheny interests, however, Finney described the former Secretary of the Interior at other times when he paid little attention to the oil lease negotiations carried on by his subordinates.

Fall was thousands of miles from his office in Washington when bids were opened and Doheny's company was chosen as the one entitled to certain leases and contracts involving an exchange of Elk Hills crude oil for fuel oil in storage at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, the witness said.

The seeming discrepancy in the two pictures of Fall's part in the Elk Hills transactions was partly explained, that, while he (Finney) actually had more to do with the closing of the April 25, 1922, lease to Doheny interests than did Fall himself, there were "two other leases with which I had nothing to do."

These other two leases, he explained, were the Teapot Dome lease to the Sinclair Oil interests and the Dec. 11, 1922, lease to Doheny interests.

Fall in Three Rivers.

In connection with the April leases and affiliated Pearl Harbor storage contracts, Finney stated, under cross-examination, that Fall was in Three Rivers, N. M., when bids were opened and that he (Finney) telegraphed Fall that, in the opinion of himself and technical advisors, the Pan-American bid was the best offered and "should be accepted."

Fall's answer, as read into the record, was: "If Admiral Robison (chief of the navy engineering bureau) and Secretary of the Navy (Edwin Denby) think best, close immediately on basis on Pan-American deal and if authorized by Denby proceed immediately award and close contract and make public in fullest and completest manner."

The leases and contracts were then awarded and a report of the award drawn up for release to the press, Finney's testimony showed.

Not Asked to Take Part.

As to the Teapot Dome and Dec. 11 Doheny leases, with which he said he had nothing to do, Finney testified he did not know why he was not asked to participate in the negotiations.

COOLIDGE A SHAM
LEADER, A FAILURE,

After Long Illness and

Nelson, 'Strongest Where Best Known.'

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 23.—James A. Reed returned to the rostrum last night. Through four months of illness he had seldom broken silence. But he came back the master of irony as of old and for two hours and 22 minutes a crowd that filled Convention Hall heard him—and watched him—play a long-pent-up stream of characteristic sarcasm, with all his old-time force upon the Republican opposition. His speech was crisscrossed with exhaustive discussion of all the issues for the election and enlightenment of his hearers.

Reed began with an apology. He said his speech was a "one-legged" affair. He expressed doubt that he could finish it. But he finished—finished strong. At times he glanced back and forth on the platform as if the case he had carried to the platform was not closed.

Assails Republicans.
The Reed address was an attack from beginning to end. He was as merciless in his denunciation of President Coolidge as he had sometimes been with Woodrow Wilson and with Theodore Roosevelt in their day.

But Reed did not confine his attack to President Coolidge. Gov. Hyde was assailed. So was Charles G. Dawes, Republican nominee for the vice presidency. Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, and Charles Evans Hughes, Secretary of State, each came in for a warning.

Senator Reed said President Coolidge was an oyster. And then he said Coolidge was a cucumber, which he defined as "neither a nut nor with no sustenance qualities." Besides, he said the President was a machine politician and a "failure," and an "accident," and a disaster and an "object of pity." He referred to Hughes sarcastically as "pious" and as a protector of the interests. And he termed Dawes "Bitterly," Reed asserted that, as between the Ku Klux Klan and Gov. Hyde, he would take the Klan. Mellon was flayed as a robber of the people. E. C. Ellis, Republican nominee for Representative in Congress from the Fifth (Jackson County) District, was likened unto a " flea-bitten Texas bronco."

Reed concluded his address with an attack on the Ku Klux Klan and a defense of Dr. A. W. Nelson, Democratic nominee for the governorship.

The Republican accusation that Nelson had joined the Klan was denounced by Reed as a "foul plot" against Dr. Nelson. He said Dr. Nelson was not guilty. He implied that the "plot" originated with Gov. Hyde.

Speaking of his own illness, which began before the New York convention, Senator Reed said, "I have been as silent as Coolidge, but for a better reason." And then dwelling further on the President's silence, said that, if Coolidge deserved support because he was silent, the same could be said with greater force in behalf of a doctor.

He quoted Shakespeare's line about "These that therefore are reputed wise, for saying nothing." Reed said that the Republicans Party split. Taking up the argument that Coolidge should be elected in order to beat La Follette, Reed said that Senator La Follette was a "red," he was a Republican "red," as his connections had been wholly with the party. It is common, he said, that La Follette will carry five to seven states, and he declared that all were Republican states, while, he declared, the Democratic States were carrying eight.

"La Follette was short in every sense of the word," he said. "The Democrats ought to make sure they

COOLIDGE A SHAM LEADER, A FAILURE, SAYS 'JIM' REED

Senator Returns to Rostrum After Long Illness and Lambasts "Napoleon of 20 Waterloos."

"RED, LA FOLLETTE IS REPUBLICAN RED"

G.O.P. Leaders Denounced for Plot Against Dr. Nelson, 'Strongest Where Best Known.'

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 29.—James A. Reed returned to the rostrum last night. Through four months of illness he had seldom broken silence. But he came back the master of irony as of old and for two hours and 22 minutes a crowd that filled Convention Hall heard him— and watched him—play a long-pent-up stream of characteristic sarcasm, with all his old-time force upon the Republican opposition. His speech was crammed with exhaustive discussion of all the issues for the edification and enlightenment of his hearers.

Reed began with an apology. He said his speech was a "one-legged" affair. He expressed doubt that he could finish it. But he finished—dashed strong. At times he paced back and forth on the platform as if he had carried to the platform was not needed.

Assails Republicans.
The Reed address was an attack from beginning to end. He was as merciless in his denunciation of President Coolidge as he had been in his denunciation of Woodrow Wilson and Theodore Roosevelt in their day.

But Reed did not confine his attack to President Coolidge. Gov. Hyde was assailed. So was Charles G. Dawes, Republican nominee for the vice presidency. Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, and Charles Evans Hughes, Secretary of State, each came in for a warning.

Senator Reed said President Coolidge was an oyster. And then he said Coolidge was a cucumber, which he defined as "seed and water with no sustenance qualities."

Besides, he said the President was a machine politician and a "failure," and an "object of pity." He referred to Hughes sarcastically as "him" and as a protector of the "hewers." And he termed Dawes the "super-fake of all times."

Bitterly, Reed assailed the Ku Klux Klan and the defense of Dr. A. W. Nelson, Democratic nominee for the governorship.

The Republican accusation that Nelson had joined the Klan was denounced by Reed as a "foul plot" against Dr. Nelson. He said Dr. Nelson was not guilty. He implied that the "plot" originated with Gov. Hyde.

Speaking of his own illness, which began before the New York convention, Senator Reed said, "I have been as silent as Coolidge, but for a better reason." And then he went further on the President's silence, said that, if Coolidge deserved support because he was silent, the same could be said of any other man.

He quoted Shakespeare's words about "These that therefore only are reputed wise, for saying nothing."

Republican Party Split.
Taking up the argument that Coolidge should be elected in order to beat La Follette, Reed said that Senator La Follette was a "red," that he was a Republican "red," as his affiliations had been wholly with that party. It is conceded, he said, that La Follette will carry five of the states and he declared that all these were Republican states, while, he declared, the Democratic forces were standing solid.

The Issues of the Campaign

By John W. Davis

Nominee in Second Daily Statement Outlines Democratic Program to Put Farmers on Equality With Industry.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—In his second statement outlining campaign issues, John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for the presidency, declared today that unrest on the part of the nation's farmers would continue until their voice is listened to at the White House and in Congress with the same attention given the voice of the banker and industrialist. The policy of the Democratic party, Davis said, "is to readjust the balance and to put agriculture where it belongs—on an equality with industry." Mr. Davis asserted that "all the Republican party has to offer to the farmer is a promise to call a commission and investigate him again."

"The outstanding economic problem of the hour," Davis said, "is to make the purchasing power of the farmer's dollar equal to that of the manufacturer's dollar."

"Republican administrations during the last generation have represented Government by industrial bias. The granting of undue preference and subsidies to industries by Republican administrations has forced the farmers to indulge in an abnormal struggle to get a fair hearing in Congress."

"The farmers of this country are not mendicants and they are willing to take the risks that attend their all-important calling. But they are entitled to return to a government genuinely interested in their problems and keenly desirous to serve them to the limit of its power."

Discriminatory Taxes.
"The farmers feel more severely than any other the effect of discriminatory taxes. The goods which they sell are in large measure sold in the markets of the world, but those which they buy consist largely of manufactured articles heavily protected behind a Republican tariff wall. The farmers, therefore, have been forced to contribute profits to other industries with no compensating benefit to themselves."

"The Republicans' agricultural agreement is composed of just three planks. The first is the reminder to the farmer, that 'God helps only those who help themselves.' Second, they tell the farmer that curtailed production is the remedy. Remedy No. 3 is that we should have a commission of impartial experts with economic advisers to consider the agricultural situation and report."

Three Investigations.
"The farmers of this country have been investigated in the last three years—first by the Congress itself, for six long months; then by an agricultural conference of experts called by President Harding, and then by the Department of Agriculture. And today all that the Republican party has to offer to the farmer is a promise to call a commission and investigate him again."

"The Democratic party, on the other hand, has a definite program by means of which it expects to restore to the farmer the economic equality of which he has been unjustly deprived."

way to defeat La Follette would be to vote for Coolidge. But as matters stand, with the Republican Northwestern army in disorder and flight, the argument clearly is to vote for Davis. So much for this fake.

Compare Bryan and Dawes.
He next discussed "the pretense that the country will be benefited by the election being thrown into Congress." He reviewed the prophecies that this might result in the succession of Charles W. Bryan to the presidency.

The first answer to this, he said, is that if enough persons vote for Davis, the election will not go into Congress. Second, he argued that Bryan was preferable to Dawes.

"Nobody has ever charged Charles W. Bryan," he said, "with having been a party to a fraud upon the laws of his State, or upon the depositions or creditors of any bank. What about Mr. Dawes?"

He discussed the part taken by Dawes in the Lorimer bank scandal in Chicago. "If by any peradventure he should become President," Reed said, "I venture the assertion that there will be other Teapot Dome scandals."

A Machine Made Statesman.
"Coolidge the Strong Man," was the Senator's next topic. "They tell us," he said, "that Coolidge is not only a man as an expert, but as a horse radish. He is described as a veritable Samson, whose locks no Delilah has shown. Those who know the President will never recognize the picture."

"A Vermont Republican with all the standard, reactionary opinions of that type, he moved to Massa-

LA FOLLETTE IN BITTER ATTACK ON WALL STREET

Large Brooklyn Audience Cheers as Senator Sails Into Morgan and Standard Oil Groups.

CITES GROWTH OF COAL MONOPOLY

Says Wall Street Named Old Party Candidates—Charges Attempt to Coerce Voters.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON.

A Washington Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—If Wall street was listening last night it must have shivered and looked apprehensively in the direction of Brooklyn. The sound that echoed across the East River was not reassuring to Wall street. It was the sound of 4000 men and women clamoring for Wall street's blood.

One had a vision of a fat gentleman in a silk hat, crouching apprehensively in the shadows of old Trinity Church, wildly wondering whether to call the police or make a dash for the Hudson.

Not since Senator La Follette spoke at Minneapolis, in the heart of the Farmer-Labor country, has he received such a tumultuous welcome as that which rocked the walls of the big skating rink in Brooklyn last night. The audience did not speak with his accent, and many of the faces were dark and alien, but the spirit which animated it was identical with that which was manifest at Omaha, Des Moines and Kansas City. It was vociferous and eager, like that at Detroit.

"I shall speak tonight of Wall street," said the Senator, in beginning. "I shall speak of two groups, J. P. Morgan & Co., which rules through gold, and the Standard Oil Co., which rules through oil. For gold and oil rule the world today."

They cheered that statement. They cheered when he said that Wall street had dictated the presidential ticket of both the old parties. But they cheered loudest of all when he declared he was in favor of "amending the Constitution so that nine black-robed Judges, appointed for life, and responsible to nobody, will no longer rule the American people."

Listeners Block Streets.
The speech was a composite of other speeches. There was little in it that he had not already said during the campaign. The audience was the thing. The walls of the old rink fairly bulged, and hundreds outside gazed ear to the amplifiers, for the police had shut off traffic at both entrances, and the listeners were massed thickly from curb to curb. They listened as if La Follette's doctrine were meat and drink to them.

The recital of the growth of the trusts, of magic monopolies mounting under the Napoleonic touch of J. Pierpont Morgan, the elder, of the absorption of weak competitors into great systems, of foreign loans and the marines in Haiti and Santo Domingo—it was all "old stuff" to the correspondents who have been around the dirls with the Wisconsin Senator, but "these Brooklynites listened with tense, upturned faces and staring eyes, and sprang into galvanic cries of confirmation."

A great ovation greeted the Senator when he entered the hall. Persons in the audience climbed on their chairs for a better view of him, became excited, and tumbled off. The yelling, whistling and handclapping stirred memories of Al Smith demonstrations at the Democratic national convention. After bowing and waving his hand for five minutes, La Follette held up his watch to signify that his time was limited.

Audience Weeps With La Follette.
But every time the tumult died down, somebody would call for three more cheers, and it would start all over again. Finally the chairman was able to introduce Col. Warren Shaw Fischer, national commander of the United War Veterans of America, who made a short, impassioned speech, and then pinned a medal on the Senator's lapel. "In recognition of his services to his country and its war veterans," that started the cheering all over again.

It was a little too much for Senator La Follette. His adamant chin began to quiver, the stars

The Amendments Made Plain

Proposed Changes in the Constitution Which You Will Vote on Next Tuesday

No. 6, Which Is Proposed

Workmen's Compensation Statute, Was Placed on Ballot by Initiative Petitions.

Proposal Originated With State Federation of Labor—It Is Being Fought by Associated Industries of Missouri.

THE Post-Dispatch presents herewith the second of three news articles for the information of voters in next Tuesday's election, as to the 10 proposed constitutional amendments and legislative measures which will be submitted to the voters.

On the constitutional ballot, which every voter will receive at the polls, these propositions appear only by abbreviated titles. Hence, it is necessary for voters to learn their purport in advance.

Of the 10 propositions to be voted on in the city, the first eight are to be voted on throughout the State, while Nos. 9 and 10 are local propositions. In St. Louis County, only the eight State propositions are on the ballot.

Proposition No. 6 is described herewith. It is a proposed workmen's compensation law. Another article will deal with the two local propositions, Nos. 9 and 10, which are the Free Bridge approach and the Courthouse site measure, respectively.

The act establishes a fund to be known as the Missouri compensation insurance fund, to insure employers against liability for compensation, and to insure that employees and their dependents will get the compensation required. The commission is to fix the rate of premium to be charged to employers. The premiums will be based on the payroll of the employers. The fund is to be established by appropriation from the State treasury, to be repaid later. The fund, it is stated, is to be a revolving fund, and is to be made self-supporting.

Negligence No Defense.
Every employer and employee, it is provided, shall be deemed to have accepted the provisions of the act, unless he shall specifically state in writing, or the negligence of another employee. The operation of relief and benefit funds already established is not to be affected by the measure.

The rates of compensation to employees for temporary total or partial disability, or permanent total or partial disability, are fixed by a schedule covering the loss of use of various members. The compensation is fixed by periods of so many weeks, during which the employer is to pay the employee two-thirds of his weekly wage, but not less than $10 or more than $30 a week.

The smallest number of weeks is nine, for the loss of any toe except the great toe, at the distal or outer joint. For the loss of one leg at the hip, loss of major arm at the shoulder, or complete mouth relaxed, the steady eyes were filmed over and his voice broke completely. For the first time since this trip began the old bawler wept. The audience wept with him. Women were snuffling all over the hall, and the sturdy yeomanry of Flat-bush blew his nose with feeling as the white-haired speaker said:

"Maligned and misrepresented by a hostile press, my personality and my motives, distorted out of all truth—to be greeted in this moving and memorable manner by a New York audience affects me more than I have words to express."

His voice quavered again, and he hesitated before he resumed: "All my life I have tried to follow just one straight course, doing the best I could for the people of my State and of my country."

"You're all right, Bob; we're for you," they chorused mightily and the Senator beamed once more, and then put on his fighting face as he tore into Morgan and Standard Oil.

The first mention of those financial powers drew a storm of bores and hisses. The crowd was extraordinarily responsive and vocal throughout. It insisted on answering even his rhetorical questions.

"Who do you think would do most to keep this country out of war, Calvin Coolidge, John Davis or myself?" he shouted, in his paragraph on "financial imperialism."

BIG VOTE FOR LA FOLLETTE IN PROSPECT IN OHIO

Democrats Claim 75 Per Cent of His Strength Will Come From Republican Party.

COOLIDGE LIKELY TO HAVE BIG LEAD

Democrats Say They Could Have Carried Ohio for Davis, Had He Campaigned Entire State.

By CHARLES MICHELESON.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 29.—Apparently all that is left of the hopes with which the Democrats entered the campaign in Ohio, is the continuing faith of the State Committee.

Despite the straw votes that seem to show Coolidge getting a vote as big as that of Davis and La Follette combined, the local organization insists that La Follette's vote is 75 per cent a defection from the Republicans and that in these circumstances there is still a chance that the count votes on Nov. 4 will show Davis ahead.

One thing they are absolutely sure of is that Gov. Denney will be re-elected, and that they will win three or four Democratic Representatives in addition to the two dozen they have in the present Congress.

The one surprising feature of the election promises to be the immensity of the La Follette vote. The statement that he is going to carry Cuyahoga County, which is Cleveland, is frequently made and infrequently contradicted. He is expected to get 100,000 votes in that largest of Ohio cities, 75,000 in Toledo, and 40,000 in the Cincinnati district. In such industrial centers as Akron he will run proportionately as well.

In the old western reserve there is a big proportion of German farmers and there the insurgent vote will naturally climb to big figures. His more enthusiastic supporters see him getting the State. He will not do anything like that, but it is quite within the bounds of probability that he will roll up a total of 500,000 votes.

Ohio this time will cast approximately 2,000,000. It being one of the states in which there has been no important increase in registration. This latter circumstance is explaining variously an explanation of the general indifference that marks the campaign in many sections of the country, and, by the Republicans as meaning simply that the election of Coolidge is such a foregone conclusion that people refuse to be excited about it.

Right after the Madison Square Garden convention the Ohio farmers went to national Democratic headquarters with the declaration that La Follette would get 500,000 votes in this State and that most of them would be ex-Republicans. They said then that if the Democratic candidate would circulate in this vicinity, and if they could have an adequate appropriation to get the Democrats out, they would guarantee Davis the 34 electoral votes of the State.

They still insist that had their plea been listened to they would have done it. The local political situation suggests they may have been right, for though Coolidge is expected to carry the State by several hundred thousand, even the Republicans have so very great hopes of getting in their candidate for Governor, or of holding the Democrats to their present representation in Congress.

Like all these Middle Western States where the Democratic prospects are dwindling, even still confidence that the two of the country will stand up to the latest of giving John W. Davis a big enough vote in the electoral college to prevent the President from having a majority.

La Follette's big lead. Much of this confidence is, of course, built on the big run La Follette is having here. If he can make 75 per cent of the total vote of Ohio, they do not see how he can help carrying the State.

La Follette closes his campaign in New York State tonight with a speech at Schenectady. Tomorrow night he speaks in Boston. Pri-

Religious Prejudice Disclaimed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

UNDER the heading, "Religious Prejudice in St. Louis," the Post-Dispatch on Oct. 23 comments editorially on the protest of Ellenwood residents and their injunction suit against the United Hebrew Congregation from building a synagogue on the intended site on Skinker road. The editorial of the Post-Dispatch conveys the erroneous impression that the objection is based on religious prejudice.

The protest petitions include a dozen Jewish names. If the protest was religious, Jewish names could not consistently appear upon the protest, or as plaintiffs in the lawsuit now directed against the trustees of the congregation. The opposition is based on the belief that the United Hebrew Congregation intends to build not only a synagogue of divine worship, but a structure which is to include many social activities of the nature of a community center, such as they now conduct. This, in the opinion of the residents of the district, will tend to depreciate their property and alter the quiet, privacy and residential attractiveness of their district and the surrounding subdivisions. The residents contend that the directors purchased two of the lots under the pretense that they were to be used for private residences and that the members of the congregation do not live within the district.

The distinction drawn between "synagogue" and "church" in the amended injunction petition is a technical matter. It is a matter of philology and legal phraseology, not indicating prejudice. The residents who are protesting assert that they are merely attempting to protect their homes against an unwelcome encroachment. A protest similar to that against the Jewish congregation has been sent to Christian churches. In view of this fact and the one above mentioned, that Jewish and non-Jewish persons have signed the protest, the element of religious prejudice is not involved.

The Post-Dispatch should make correction or elaboration of its editorial so that these essential facts should be known and the false impression dispelled that ancient bigotry and intolerance exist in Ellenwood and in St. Louis. It may also interest the editor of the Post-Dispatch and its readers to know that the congregation owns a beautiful and adequate site on Delmar boulevard, opposite the Jewish Hospital and St. Luke's Hospital, where they could build their synagogue and social center. To build there would be the solution of the unfortunate misunderstanding.

We are residents of Ellenwood and Hillcrest, and are not of the Jewish faith. HILLCREST PROTECTIVE ASS'N. CHIEF R. Croninger, Secretary. Geo. Lambert. J. L. Nelson. ELLENWOOD PROTECTIVE ASS'N. John R. Hartman. W. P. Gruner. E. A. O'Donnell, Secretary.

Why We Entered the War.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHY don't someone nail La Follette for that libel that he is trying to put on the U. S. through his campaign speeches? To say that the banks forced the United States into the war is sure a lie and an outrageous accusation. Any sane person knows that there never was such a nefarious thing done under the Wilson administration.

Every true American knows that we entered the war to defend ourselves against the outrages committed against us by the Germans and for no other reason. This one thing that La Follette has said ought to defeat him—defeat him for the love of true Americans. To have such a man for President would be as bad as to have the Kaiser.

M. DUFFY.

Republican Hoaxing.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

JUST another indication of the baseness of the Republican party.

I am employed in the office of one of the largest corporations in the city and in a department where the purchasing is done and of course we are visited by the representatives of manufacturers throughout the United States. One of these gentlemen, a Republican was confidentially (?) imparting some of his Republican propaganda while on one of these visits. He is in a position to meet some of the "best minds" of his party on his travels and they have informed him they will put Coolidge back in the White House on Nov. 4, and within three or four months afterwards they will then begin their war on the laboring man. Their wages have been entirely too high and they are going to bring them to their knees, if they have to close down every large plant in the country.

So be careful just how you vote on Nov. 4. If you want to earn a living or be just a common slave. C. C. S.

DECEPTION AND DEFACTION.

We thought that Gov. Hyde had sounded the depths of political baseness when he attacked the integrity and veracity of Dr. Nelson on the Klan question, and when an employee of the State, directed by Chairman Phares of the Republican State Committee and Gov. Hyde's own secretary, procured affidavits in support of his charge. But he has found other depths.

Gov. Hyde used the police force to get evidence against Leo Felton, who had testified in favor of Dr. Nelson, and then in a public statement produced records of the Police Department in an attempt to show that Dr. Nelson had rented a house owned by him on the corner of Twenty-second street and Franklin avenue to police characters.

Frederick Dubinsky, who is the lessee of the property, declares that Dr. Nelson owns only the land; that he himself controls the property and rents it and collects the rent; that Dr. Nelson has no more to do with the rental of the property than the King of Siam.

Defamation of character seems to be regarded by Gov. Hyde as a legitimate means of electing his own candidate, Mr. Baker. His efforts by hook or crook to place a Klan stigma upon Dr. Nelson have been thoroughly exposed as the height and depth of hypocrisy by Senator Reed, in his Kansas City speech. The Senator showed conclusively that it was Hyde himself who has wallowed in a mess of Klan affiliations, and who had kept himself surrounded by Klansmen in office. Through Klansmen whom he appointed to office the State Capitol was turned over to the Klan for secret meetings.

Gov. Hyde has not, however, accepted the challenge of the Post-Dispatch to discuss his presidential candidate, Mr. Coolidge, who is silent on the Klan, nor his party, which is in alliance with the Klan in a number of states. The Governor takes his cue from the national leaders of his party in diverting the issue. The national leaders, however, have carefully avoided attempting to defame John W. Davis. They have concentrated their defamation campaign upon La Follette, whose progressive movement is a menace to the party.

In point of deception, Gov. Hyde's program of calumniating Nelson is of a piece with the frantic efforts of the national Republican leaders to divert attention from the real issues by howling that the election of Coolidge is the only means of saving the country from ruin. They make the same argument that the election of Coolidge is the only way to avert disaster, the only way to save business, the only way to save the Constitution, the only way to save the country, when the election of Coolidge is the shortest and quickest way to weaken the Constitution, promote political revolution, destroy confidence in the Government and hamper business.

The Republican campaign, national and State, is the greatest exhibition of political bunk to confuse and mislead the people in American history. If the people are fooled by it, it will be the greatest exhibition of popular credulity in American history. In this State the campaign of deception is supplemented by defamation.

WHEN EXPOSURE IS FUTILE.

Col. R. R. McCormick, editor of the Chicago Tribune, told an audience the other day that "the greatest importance of the newspaper comes from a function which has devolved upon it, a function not mentioned in the Constitution and without which the Constitution could not continue to function. This is the exposure and denunciation of corruption in government."

But if, after denunciation and exposure, corruption is not rebuked by turning out of power the party and officials responsible for it or indifferent to it, exposure of corruption doesn't mean anything.

PERSUASION OR DECEIT?

The opponents of the Plaza site for the new courthouse have taken up the deceptive slogan, "save the old courthouse," and have circulated posters with sentimental appeals assuming this to be the issue to be decided in Proposition No. 10. Judge Rutledge, in behalf of the Plaza site, has called for an inquiry by the Circuit Attorney to determine whether such deliberate deception is not illegal and to ascertain the source of the anonymous posters. The State law, says Rutledge, requires election literature to bear the names of the persons responsible for its circulation.

So much for the deceit. As to the issue, the only threat of destruction of the old courthouse comes from those who are fighting the Plaza site. Harland Bartholomew, in his City Club address the other day, quoted one of the Broadway site advocates as declaring that if difficulty were encountered in obtaining funds for buying a Broadway site, funds which would not be needed if the Plaza site is chosen, the old courthouse could be torn down to make way for the new without buying additional ground.

Let none be deceived. If the Plaza site is chosen the historic old courthouse will be safe. Only the defeat of the Plaza location can endanger it. This is not said anonymously. The Post-Dispatch will stand behind its word.

St. Louis can never dress up until it gets rid of its old suit.

ROCK ISLAND THREATENING VOTERS.

The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad, like other industrial organizations, is run by employers and employees, practically all of whom are voters. As citizens and voters they are all presumably equal. Each, as citizen and voter, is or ought to be absolutely independent and sovereign.

But at this time, when it is vitally important that no voter be coerced, we find certain of the management of the Rock Island sending out political circulars and letters to voters in their employ, urging these voters, with covert threats, to form political clubs with the object of swinging the votes in a certain direction. H. E. Allen, superintendent of the Dakota division of the road, is quoted as writing to foremen and agents: "We must get these clubs organized at once. I am going to ask you to notify me the condition politically at your station. What you have done or will do. If you do not care to organize a club, and it is against your views, just say so, so we will know whether to depend on you. If other influence is being brought to bear on you by other employees, I would like to know who they are."

Just so. And if the superintendents and other tools of those higher up find that they cannot depend on agents or other workers politically, and can also discover who the "other employees" are who may be acting as American citizens, independently, in the exercise of their rights as voters, there are plenty of needy workers to replace these uncontrollable.

Form a club, or be clubbed out of your job, is virtually the threat in this Rock Island movement. If the Rock Island men and women thus threatened have the right spirit they will resist it, at whatever cost.

Senator Pepper admirably refers to the President as "the wary New England trout." When he was Vice President they used to call Mr. Coolidge the poor fish.

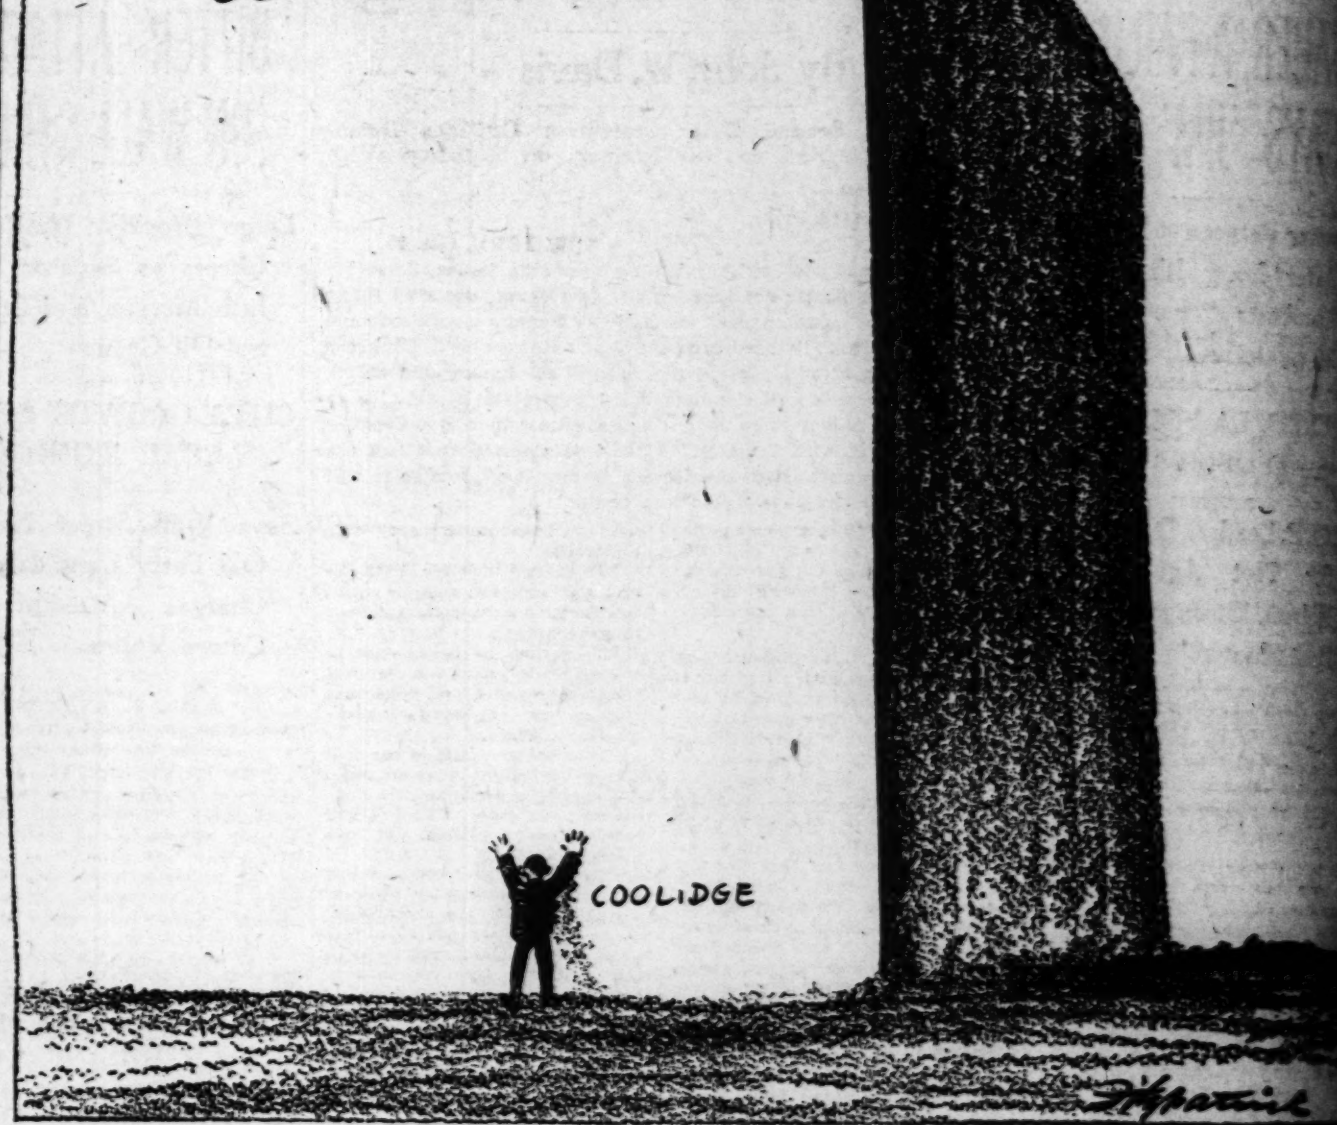

The publication of income taxes is all right as a starter, but the American people will never be truly happy until they know how many pairs of spats Bob La Follette buys a year and how much he pays for them.

QUERY.
Villon thieved in the days of old,
And feared to grace the gallows tall;
But short his neck—he needed gold,
And mauls and taverns got it all.

If stones could talk, what they'd bespeak
Of knavish deeds 'neath Paris wall;
The reason is not far to seek,
For mauls and taverns got it all.

I picture now gay Francis' knife
Uplifted in some thieving brawl;
For greed of gold, what mattered life,
Since mauls and taverns got it all?

At times, it seems, his life of shame
Would sting; o'er him would hang the pall
Of fierce remorse, but just the same
The mauls and taverns got it all.

Villon, were you alive today,
One question I had laid proposed:
How would you throw your gold away?
The mauls are bobbed; the taverns, closed.

Good Master Francis Rabelais
Is one who holds my deep esteem;
I love those pages grave and gay,
For wine and women were his theme.

To praise the cask he wrote full well—
(Gargantua would scorn a glass)
And to complete the magic spell
He sings as well the bonny lass.

Old Omar, sitting 'neath his bough,
Has twanged his lyre in praise of bliss;
A loaf, a book, he will allow,
But he must have wine and a Miso.

His theme of song is praise of wine,
The grape that can do many things;
But, maiden fair, do not repine—
Thy charms as well Old Omar sings.

O Rabelais, and Omar, too!
One problem I would have exposed:
Were you here now, what would you do?
The mauls are bobbed; the taverns, closed.

JOSEPH D. HEAD.

Franklin Roosevelt recalls that in 1912 the Republicans made the same pother over electing Mr. Taft, who ran third. Still, the betting on Wall street, which is not very sentimental about this sort of thing, persistently favored Mr. Wilson. It must be remembered that while Mr. Taft turned the Government over to predatory wealth as no one had done in the history of the republic, he was still far short of making his administration that heyday for grabbing which Mr. Harding's administration became. It is a question whether, once having had the bars let down, big business can be stopped short of a complete sacking. A tiger that has tasted blood is a house cat by comparison with an old man who has found out how anything can be bought.

Making income tax returns public serves the double purpose of showing who are cheating and where all the money is going. Nothing equally satisfying popular curiosity has been devised since Tige was a pup.

They must have the Hart panting pretty hard in Harry Hawer's district by this time.

OCTOBER 29.
Only five days now till Coolidge. In the quiet of his den, With the day's returns about him, Anyway will say, Amen.

LATE NEWS FROM THE ORACLE.
Sir: You will please recall a letter I wrote you in regard to the baseball championship. You remember I told you that Washington would win, and it came the way I told you.

Now, I am going to tell you again that our next President of the United States will be John W. Davis, as I told you at the time I wrote you about the ball game. I haven't changed my mind, and will not until he is counted in. I get these messages when I go to bed, but when I am not yet asleep. It seems to be some kind of new telegraphy, only the words are spoken to me as if I were talking to a friend.

You can tell those Wall street gamblers that the long bets they are publishing will go like the ball bets. If I had wanted to gamble, I could have won a barrel of money on Washington.

I will tell you later how St. Louis can win the ball pennant.

Washington you a great victory Nov. 4, I am yours, JOHN ALLEN.

The Democrats of Missouri almost broke their backs raising money enough to have Senator Reed's speech in Kansas City last night broadcast in St. Louis, yet the Republicans have money with which to hook up all the sending stations and make public all over the country whatever any of their speakers has to say. That is the newest difference between a little campaign fund and a big one, and it is such a vital difference that we will some time have to sit down and talk to ourselves about it.

Judge Gary says: "Just at this time, less than a week before the election, there is in the minds of business men generally a feeling of anxiety concerning the result." We believe that there is equal anxiety upon the same score among people whose living has become precarious because business has become the sole concern of the Government.

Senator Reed seems not to relish thought of Dawes, though nobody else in the Senate would have half the fun the Senator will have with Dawes in the chair.

CAT'S OUT!

At last the cat escapes the bag And no amount of nagging, Unless old Calvin gets the swag, Will set his tongue a-wagging. At free speech Silent Calvin balks Because he is so thrifty; For snappy patriotic talks He gets two-hundred-fifty.

L. C. DAVIS.

An orator in East St. Louis says Mr. Coolidge inherited his honesty. He also inherited his party's dishonesty and has never renounced the inheritance.

There ought to be money in renting gas masks to people going into the polls to vote the Republican ticket.

Secretary Mellon warns us against following false gods. He followed the genuine aluminum deities, and his income tax was in consequence $1,173,987.50.

Senator Spencer will close his campaign on next Friday night. There will remain the week end for others to do something.

Judging by the income tax returns, young John D. just about has the old man cleaned.

The MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to register without bias the latest comment by leading publicists, newspapers and publicists on the questions of the day.

MR. LA FOLLETTE'S SERVICE TO THE ACTION.

From the New York World.

MR. DAVIS has made still another attempt to draw Mr. Coolidge into a discussion of the issues of the campaign. He wishes to know why Mr. Coolidge is it is unnecessary to discuss anything.

Mr. Davis turns his attention to the activities of Senator La Follette.

For if Mr. La Follette had taken orders directly from Chairman Reed, the Republican headquarters, he could not have made himself a more perfect ally of the public party. Consider these services:

1. By making an ill-considered proposal about the Supreme Court he has aided the Republican spellbinders to issue and enable a party responsible for the corruption of government to pose as the defender of the Constitution.

2. By making demagogic attacks on business, Mr. La Follette enabled the Republican party to pose as the only guardian of business and property.

3. Having provided the Republicans with these invaluable issues, Mr. La Follette then directed his energies to relieving Coolidge of the task of defending the issue of his administration. By assuming truthfully that the two parties were controlled by the same interests and that Coolidge stood for the same things as La Follette made it possible for the Democrats to ignore the Democratic attack on their record.

4. But Mr. La Follette did not rest there. In order that the issue of his should be left undone which unite the reactionary forces and split the liberal forces, Mr. La Follette posed as follows: He abandoned the West, he had a chance to rally the opposition against Mr. Coolidge, and hurried back to the purpose of making it doubly difficult for Mr. Davis to rally the Eastern opposition to Mr. Coolidge.

Could any Republican strategist have done it better? Here was the Republican party with a record that cannot be equalled, faced by vast discontent and opposition in Mr. Davis by a candidate of equal quality. And then, like a minister of comes Mr. La Follette with a campaign signed perfectly to distract attention from the issues and capped with a strategy which consists of surrender to Coolidge the West and aggressive attack on the East. In public the Republican party is to pretend to be horrified by Mr. La Follette, but in private they should be commending his picture.

He has rallied a better party, the savior of the reactionists. He is doing to enthrone reaction in this country anything the reactionary leaders could do for themselves.

APPEALS TO WOMEN TO SUPPORT DAVIS

Mrs. Benton McMillin Extols Ideals of Democratic Party Victory Meeting.

The last of the victory drive meetings of the Democratic Women's Club at the Wednesday Club yesterday was addressed by Mrs. Benton McMillin, Democratic National Committeewoman of Tennessee, and wife of a prominent leader in that State.

Mrs. McMillin delighted her feminine audience with a graceful style of address. From having lived in Washington many years while her husband was in Congress, in the capital of Peru while he was Ambassador, at other diplomatic posts and at the Tennessee State capital through his two terms as Governor, she has acquired diplomacy and skill in handling controversial subjects.

Extols Ideals of Party.

Her speech was free from venom, her face wreathed in smiles except when she rose to heights of religious fervor in extolling the ideals of her party and the character of John W. Davis. She thrust into the scandals of the Republican administration with a keen blade, and brought home the iniquities of the present tariff laws with equal deftness. She cited many literary allusions and Biblical parallels and quoted from poets and philosophers to make her points.

Great governments in the past—Athens, Rome, Carthage, Venice—have fallen through the failure or inability of the people to exercise their opinions and through the consequent accession to power of selfish interests she pointed out and drew an analogy with present tendencies.

"It is a solemn thing," she said, "to have the responsibilities of citizenship. But it would be a more solemn thing not to have them." Thereupon she was reminded of an engaged girl, telling an unengaged girl of the solemnity with which she viewed her new position. "Yes, but," responded the unengaged one, "it is a more solemn thing not to be engaged."

Tells Witty Stories.

She had many witty stories to lighten the earnestness of her appeal. Charles Dawes, she had just read, was predicting the early disintegration of the Democratic party. She mentioned examples of the steadfastness of the party through the darkest and continued existence in hostile territory, organized as it is in every state in contrast to the lack of organization of the opposition party in the South, and related, "There is too much purity of purpose, too much idealism, too much faith in the inevitable prevalence of right over might in the Democratic party for it ever to disintegrate as long as men and women love liberty and desire to be free."

AMERICAN OPERA WILL BE SUNG IN GERMANY TONIGHT

Music Is By Simon Bucharoff of Chicago, and Is Written in Italian and French Style.

FRANKFURT, Germany, Oct. 28.—For the first time in many years an American grand opera is being produced in Germany, with the staging tonight at the Frankfurt Opera House of "Sakura," in three acts, by Simon Bucharoff of Chicago. The text is by Isidore Buchanan and the German arrangement and translation by Dr. Rudolf Lothar.

Bucharoff's music is in modern Italian and French style. The instrumentation is rich and colorful, and all modern musical and technical stage devices have been brought into play.

Simon Bucharoff was born in Russia in 1881, but went to the United States when 11 years old. Though urged into the drugstore trade, he showed unusual musical talent, both as a pianist and singer.

After studying under various masters in New York and Vienna, he took to composing, bringing out anatorio: a psalm for chorus, soloists and orchestra; a symphonic poem for orchestra, a string quartet, and an opera, "A Lover's Last," which was produced by the Chicago Opera Co.

He has many more operas in the making, and is now working on "The Song of the Sea," which was produced by the Chicago Opera Co.

$398,000 IS RAISED FOR TUTTLE MEMORIAL FUND

The Bishop Tuttle Memorial campaign, in progress for the last two weeks, will close with a dinner tonight at Chase Hotel. At last night's meeting subscription aggregating $258,000 were reported and workers today are soliciting in the downtown and factory districts seeking to raise $100,000 in an effort to reach St. Louis' goal in the campaign.

Dean William Scariett of Christ Church Cathedral has stated that a number of conditional gifts will be announced at tonight's meeting. It is understood a number of wealthy St. Louisans are sponsors of the conditional gift plan.

SAM A. BAKER DENOUNCES KLAN IN SPEECH HERE

Would Resign From Governorship After Election if Shown to Be Connected With Organization, He Says.

CALLS ON NELSON FOR SIMILAR AFFIDAVIT

He Urges Such Action to Eliminate That Issue From Campaign in City Club Address.

Sam A. Baker, Republican nominee for Governor, denounced the Ku Klux Klan in an address before the City Club at luncheon today, and read an affidavit, signed by himself, in which he declared he would resign from the governorship after election if any credible evidence ever connected him with the Klan in even the remotest degree. He called on Dr. Arthur W. Nelson, Democratic nominee, to make a similar affidavit and eliminate the issue from the campaign. "If there appears at any time," Baker said, "even after my election, credible evidence that I have in even the remotest degree been affiliated with or made application for membership or been present at any meeting of the Ku Klux Klan, I agree to tender my resignation as Governor."

Baker explained before he read the affidavit that he had prepared a set speech, which he had intended to deliver, but that his course had been altered by "happenings of the last few hours."

The "happenings," it was learned, were the general demands of St. Louis Republican leaders that Baker denounce the Klan at the City Club and it is said the same procedure will be followed at the Coliseum tonight.

"I made my position clear in July last on this question and again in August," he said. "I have made my campaign on a broad plane and have refrained from slinging mud. I will swing a sledge hammer, if anything."

"An article in a Kansas City paper yesterday pointed out that there was a whispering campaign connecting me with application for membership in the Ku Klux Klan. I will reply to that, and it will not take me a week to do it."

"I want to let the world know I have no money, but my word has always been my bond, and this is my sworn word."

"It appears to me that anyone who has in any way been affiliated with an organization such as the Ku Klux Klan, which is opposed to some of the guarantees of the Constitution of the United States, is unfit to be Governor of Missouri or hold any other office of trust within the gift of the American people."

Reads From Affidavit.
"I do now," he said, reading further from the affidavit, "solemnly under oath and knowing the full consequences of my act, declare that I have never made application for membership in the Ku Klux Klan; that I have never attended a meeting of this organization anywhere, either out of curiosity or for any other purpose, either as a member, sympathizer or otherwise. I have never signed any card, paper or writing, the meaning of which I did not understand."

"I feel that integrity is a vital essential of many character and

Flyers Dissolve Clouds With Electrified Sand

Invention of Harvard Professor Demonstrated at Bolling Field From Altitude of 13,000 Feet.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Using an electrified sand process devised by Dr. L. Francis Warren, a Harvard professor, two army aviators today successfully "shot down" a series of clouds which overshadowed the field.

Smaller groups disappeared entirely under the attack, while heavier masses were criss-crossed with artificial chasms through which the sun's rays pierced brightly to the earth.

Although conditions were far from ideal the operations of the two planes, piloted by Capt. A. I. Eagle and Lieut. W. E. Melville, were plainly apparent to the spectators at the field. They were forced to climb 13,000 feet before they reached the main strata of cumulus clouds, which was their objective. Through special binoculars they were seen to disappear before a fragment of sand, which then suddenly "broke through" as the cloud disintegrated under the shower of electrified sand thrown by centrifugal force through nozzles set in the under-portion of the fuselage.

The aviators described a circle above the cloud bank and the circle was duplicated in a clean-cut path-way through the mist. From the ground it appeared that the cloud perceptibly lessened throughout its structure as the planes proceeded.

A projecting isthmus of cloud then went into nothingness as the planes skirted its edge, spraying the fine silica.

that anyone who is guilty of subterfuge or chicanery in order to gain political advantage is not alone unworthy of the votes of the people of this State, but is unfit to hold office."

The affidavit concluded with the statement that Baker called upon Dr. Nelson to make a similar affidavit in order that "this matter may be taken out of politics as unworthy of a political campaign."

Applauded Intermittently.
Baker's manner of address was vigorous. He was well received and his speech was applauded intermittently throughout. Following his statement about the Klan, he drifted into the set speech which he had prepared for the gathering of business men, and dwelt particularly with the manner in which business should receive co-operation from government. He appealed for the passage of the good roads proposal.

About 250 persons, mostly men, heard the address.

Police Chief Arrested.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 22.—Chief Alfred G. Brooks of the South Portland police, was arrested last night on warrants charging him with conspiracy to violate the State prohibition laws and with accepting bribes for protection of rum runners.

day night in Pittsburgh, and closes his campaign Saturday night with what is expected to be a spectacular rally in the Cleveland convention hall where his candidacy was announced.

Before departing this morning he issued a statement declaring that the responses which his candidacy has evoked show that "the progressive movement is as strong to the East as it is in the West."

COOLIDGE A SHAM
LEADER, A FAILURE
SAYS "JIM" REED

terious. Let me catalogue a few of his attempts and failures:

"He tried to take us into the World Court, credited by the League of Nations, and advocated that this court should have the power to elect forever its successors. In this attempt Coolidge failed, for which let us thank God and take courage."

There was a great coal strike. Coolidge was appealed to by the public to avert a calamity. He arose in his strength and told Gov. Pinchot to do it himself. And, the Governor did.

"The Ku Klux Klan raised its ugly head. Outrages were being perpetrated throughout the country. The fires of race hate and religious persecution were being lighted. A word from the Chief Executive might have arrested the movement, but he maintained a masterful silence then, and maintains it yet."

"Coolidge is silent because he wants the votes of the Ku Klux Klan. La Follette has spoken. Davis has spoken. Even Davis has spoken in a wishy-washy way. Crossways With Congress."

When the Teapot Dome robbery was exposed, Coolidge was for a long time silent, then spoke feebly in defense of the malefactors, and then regretfully accepted their resignations."

Listing further the President's proposals in which he had failed to obtain the support of Congress, Senator Reed named Railroad Consolidation, which he said the President favored, but was not strong enough to bring to a vote; Reorganization of Departments, a recommendation for which failed;

Both aviators declared the experiment a success, without attempting to predict its value when utilized on a large scale.

"Undoubtedly it would serve to clear the field of a denigrating fog bank," Capt. Eagle said. "If we were advised that a squadron was approaching the field, for instance, and could not locate the landing because of the low clouds or fog, we could send two or three ships and clear a path for them. I suppose the same effect could be had over fog-wrapped harbors."

Capt. Eagle said he had "dug an immense well" into one cloud bank, which, however, was so thick that he had been unable to drive the aperture to the underside.

Cloud Appeared to Reform.
"I circled in the cloud," he said, "and the sand cut a perfect well. On every side rose the white walls and far above was the blue sky."

He agreed with Lieut. Melville that one cloud appeared to drop away when attacked and to reform in lesser volume, at a lower level.

The airplanes and personnel were assigned to Dr. Warren by Major-General Patrick, chief of the air service, at the suggestion of Secretary Weeks.

It was understood President Coolidge had expressed his interest in the experiments and had indicated his hope that facilities for their continuation might be found.

The Bolling Field group will make flights daily, the inventor said, during the next six weeks, with a view to obtaining exhaustive data for the Government departments.

taxing of securities now tax-exempt another failure; proposal to place prohibition agents under the Civil Service rules, which "did not get a vote"; Japanese Exclusion, his veto of which was overruled; the plan to sell Muscle Shoals to Henry Ford, to which "Congress refused to be a party" and the bonus bill, veto overridden by Congress.

The President's veto of the postal salary increase bill, Reed said, would have been overridden if time for a vote had remained.

"Congress passed the Bureau pension bill," Reed continued. "The President vetoed that bill. He was sustained in the Senate by just one vote. That is his single triumph. It is a mighty poor hen that cannot hatch one chick out of so large a setting of eggs."

"Enough has been said to dissipate the myth that Calvin Coolidge is a giant, commanding by the force of a mighty and ungodly intellect. The truth is, that if strength was prohibited in men as alcohol is in beer, Coolidge would not violate the prohibitory law. He would analyze less than one-half of one per cent."

Reed said that when the farmers were in distress, President Coolidge declared that "simple and direct methods put into operation by the farmer himself are the only real sources of restoration."

"That is to say," said the Senator, "he told the farmer to go and help himself. Under normal conditions the farmer has always stood ready to help himself. But he is the victim of extraordinary conditions, and is being plundered night and day under a tariff law for which Mr. Coolidge stands sponsor."

Coolidge has never yet told the big trusts to take care of themselves. On the contrary, he has stood for a law which taxes all the people for their benefit."

Coolidge and Mellon Plan.
"The Democrats took the Mellon plan and stood it on its head," Reed said. "Coolidge broke silence for once. It was given out from the White House that he would veto the bill if we dared pass it in that form. We disregarded his admonition, and he was compelled to sign the bill. Those of you who have had a substantial reduction in taxes on moderate incomes have to thank the Democratic party."

The present tariff, the speaker declared, "out-herods Herod," and "exceeds in its plundering rates even the Payne-Aldrich law." He discussed particularly the effect of the tariff on the farmer.

Accepts League Referendum.
The League of Nations was the last national issue which Reed mentioned, and he said merely that, as Candidate Davis was committed to the national referendum plan of the Democratic platform, he also was satisfied with this plan, and was confident as to the result of such a referendum.

Reed then indorsed Arthur W. Nelson, Democratic candidate for the governorship, and assailed Gov. Hyde and the Republican campaign managers for having charged that Nelson was a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

"Nobody has accused Arthur W. Nelson of dishonesty in his personal, family or business relations," Reed said. "He was nominated by an overwhelming vote. He ran the best in that part of the State where he was best known."

"I believe that the attack made upon Dr. Nelson is as foul a slander and as base a conspiracy as has disgraced the politics of this State in many years. It ought to send every fair-minded man and woman in the State to the polls to vote for Dr. Nelson."

Nelson Grateful for Reed's Attack on His Enemies.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
DEXTER, Mo., Oct. 22.—"I am pleased to note Senator Reed's vigorous speech in support of the Democratic party at Kansas City last night," said Dr. A. W. Nelson, Democratic nominee for the governorship, here today. "Every Democrat rejoices that the Senator's health is so restored as to enable him to again become active in party affairs. His scathing denunciation of the present State administration on account of continued attacks upon me is merited in its full application, and I know it will be indorsed by loyal Missourians irrespective of party affiliations."

BIG VOTE FOR LA FOLLETTE IN

losing the national election while winning with their local candidates is common through the Western and Middle Western country. Neither in Ohio nor in Indiana is this due to any deliberate trailing of Davis for the Governor, nor is it true of New York, but the situation is accomplishing the same results as such a deal would have brought about.

What happens is that the state fight is so much more personal and intimate that the national fight that the efforts preponderate in that direction. Enemies as well as friendships are more intense; interest in possible appointments is more acute. Nobody goes to his neighbor to ask as a personal favor to vote for this or that presidential candidate, while in every community this is going on constantly in the interest of candidates for Governor and other local officers as well as Congressmen.

In this way a big state fight is as likely to be a liability as an asset to the national ticket, unless the national organization carries on an active and crusade. At least this is what is happening in half a dozen crucial states.

Dullness of Campaign.
The dullness of the election in Ohio is manifest at every political meeting that has been held either by the Republicans or the Democrats. It is not true of the big La Follette gatherings. Both La Follette and Wheeler have filled the biggest halls in the State, while the two main parties have generally eschewed the great auditoriums and have infrequently been able to crowd even the smaller ones.

Mass meeting enthusiasm, however, is an even less reliable index of what is going to happen on an election than a straw vote, where the circumstances that Secretary of State Hughes spoke to 1500 in Cincinnati, while Davis had twice as many and La Follette four times the number, does not alter the indication that Coolidge and Davis will carry the State by a whaling plurality that possibly will approach the 400,000 Ohio gave Harding.

The apparent incongruity of this figure in connection with the big vote accredited to La Follette simply means that the Democrats are off in their perceptive figures and that the Wisconsin candidate is drawing as heavily on the ordinary Democratic labor vote as on the rural Republican reservoir. The Republican Congressmen the Democrats hope to displace are C. J. Thompson, C. C. Kearns, R. C. Cole, William Morgan and C. E. Moore, and they likewise think they are going to elect the successor of John L. Cable, who retired to try for the governorship. They are very likely to realize half of their hopes, while retaining the six present Democratic Representatives.

The Ku Klux Klan, though numerous enough, does not appear to be an important feature of the Ohio campaign, though it was doubtless claim credit for the defeat of the expected Coolidge plurality. The local organizations tell me that the Klan is unable to hold its membership against the claims of the usual political allegiances.

BOY, 9, RIDING COASTER WAGON, KILLED BY AUTO

Sent Out to Find Brother, Robert Fritschle Turned Wagon Down Driveway
Into Street.

IMPOSSIBLE TO STOP CAR, DRIVER SAYS

Victim Is Son of Salesman and His Mother and Sister Were Drowned Swimming in Lake.

Robert Woodson Fritschle, 9-year-old grandson of Mr. and Mrs.
Robert F. Fritschle, 4425 Laclede avenue, was killed by an automobile yesterday when he rode a coaster wagon down the driveway of an oil filling station near the Fritschle home at 5:50 p. m.

The automobile, driven by John
D. Pace, 41 years old, of St. John's Station, hit the wagon as it emerged into the street from in front of a parked machine. Pace said it was impossible for him to stop in time.

Robert was the son of Horace E.
Fritschle, a Chicago traveling salesman. A year ago his mother and a younger sister were drowned while swimming in a lake near Chicago, and since that time he and his brother, Horace Jr., 7, had been living with their grandparents. Yesterday Robert was sent to find his brother, who was playing at the corner of Newstead and Laclede avenues. He coasted down the sidewalk until 50 feet west of Newstead, where he turned his wagon into the street.

A passing motorist took the boy to St. John's Hospital, where he was pronounced dead, and Pace drove to Newstead avenue police station, where he surrendered. He declared he had tried to swerve aside and avoid the collision.

The death of Robert Fritschle increased the year's number of motor vehicle fatalities to 147, compared to 113 in the same period last year.

Negro Dies of Injuries Suffered in Auto Accident.

George French, 56, a negro, of 2822 Laclede avenue, died yesterday of injuries suffered Sunday night at Lucas and Leffingwell avenues.
He was crossing the street when hit by the auto of Clarence Oden, 24, a negro, of 2338 Lucas avenue.

Body of Motor Cycle Rider Killed in Race to Be Buried Here.

The body of Lester R. Meyer
19, a St. Louisan who was killed in a motor cycle race on the Ascott track at Los Angeles, Saturday afternoon, will be brought to St. Louis for burial by his mother, Mrs. Minnie S. Meyer, formerly of 4146 Manchester avenue, who left her home in Los Angeles for St. Louis this morning. The body will arrive Saturday and will be taken to the Kreighshauer Undertaking Parlor
Sarah street and Manchester avenue. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Young Meyer was well known among motor cycle fans and had written on motor cycle topics. He went to California last February and has been racing in and near Los Angeles while being employed in a garage. Details of the accident, which was witnessed by the boy's mother, are not known here.
Besides his mother, two brothers, William D. and Fred J. Meyer, of the Meyer Brothers Chemical Co., 4146 Manchester avenue, survive him.

Three Elderly Persons and Girl Hurt Seriously in Accidents.
Joseph Machacek, 77, a tailor 1723 Oregon avenue, suffered a fracture of the skull, shoulder, arm and ribs; Mrs. Jennie Ingersoll, 65, 2809 Olive street, a fracture of the skull and right leg and internal injuries; John Wiperman, 62, 4340
Nebraska avenue, brain concussion internal injuries and lacerated scalp, and Helen Bassett, 9, 7511 Alabama avenue, concussion of the brain and lacerated scalp.

Frank Tucker, 12, 820 South Broadway, suffered fractures of the left arm and shoulder when thrown from his bicycle after striking a parked automobile. Four automobiles figured in a collision at Manchester and Mitchell avenues, two colliding while going in opposite directions and the other two running into the rear of the machines.
Mrs. Marie Schlessler, 1123 Kentucky avenue, and Henry Altroge, 2923 East John avenue, were slightly injured.

PEOPLES' BUS CO. BUYS TRACT Company Plans to Erect $100,000
Garage on Site.

The People's Motorbus Co. has purchased a tract of ground, 82 feet wide by 250 feet deep, on Rosedale avenue, along the Wabash Railroad right-of-way, on which to erect a garage costing $100,000 to house 150 buses.
Officials of the company said the building would be completed by spring.

KIDNAPING CHARGE AGAINST WALTER HAGEN DISMISSED

Warrant Was Based on False Story of Boy Who Ran Away From Home.

whose story that he had been kidnaped by Walter Hagen, professional golfer, resulted in the issuance of a Chicago warrant for Hagen's arrest, has admitted that he an endeavor to cover the fact that he had run away from home, according to word received by W. G.

Marvin, the golfer's attorney, over the telephone from Kansas City.
The boy confessed, Marvin was told, that he had seen Hagen's name in the papers as a participant in an exhibition match in Kansas City and that he immediately thought of the tale as one that would clear him at home. The Pride in the Commonwealth

WE TAKE PRIDE in the growth of "Commerce" as reflected in the increased deposits and earnings shown in our statement from time to time.

It is still more satisfying to realize what this constant progress has meant to our customers, our community and our territory.

For the growth of this single institution during 67 years has been in proportion to the aid afforded fundamental activities—the expansion of commercial, industrial and agricultural life in the Mississippi Valley.

Some conception of the extent of this public service may be gained by a knowledge of the bank's earnings. Since 1889, when "Commerce" became a national bank, it has earned and paid to stockholders $26,460,000.00 in dividends.

This is not only evidence of sound management, but suggests the vastly greater wealth put into circulation for the common good in order to make such returns.

After all, this is what we are most proud of at the National Bank of Commerce—the opportunity to build as we earn, to constructively aid in meeting the needs, satisfying the ambitions, increasing the happiness and prosperity of our commonwealth.

DYE PATENTS BRIEF FILED

Chemical Foundation Replies to U. S. Attorney's Argument.
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22.—The Chemical Foundation, Inc., filed a brief in the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday defending the sale to it by the Government of several thousand German dye and chemical patents which were seized during the World War.

Claiming the sale of the patents to the Chemical Foundation was invalid, the Government sought to have it set aside, but Judge Hugh M. Morris in the United States District Court of Delaware dismissed the suit and the Government appealed. The brief filed today is a reply to that of the Government filed several weeks ago in its appeal to have the Circuit Court overrule Judge Morris and order the Foundation to restore the patents. The hearing of the appeal will begin Nov. 10.

NEW CHAMBER WILL MEET

First Session of University City Body to Be Held Tomorrow.
The first meeting of the newly organized Chamber of Commerce of University City will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the new auditorium of the City Hall, Delmar boulevard and Heman avenue. Speakers for this meeting will be Warren C. Flynn, Mayor of University City; Carl F. O. Meyer, vice president Chamber of Commerce of St. Louis, and Collin M. Selph, former Postmaster of St. Louis.

Men and women interested in civic affairs for the betterment of University City are expected to be present. Matters of importance to property owners and merchants will be discussed. Henry R. Welsch, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will preside.

Mrs. Morrow's Campaign
Based on Appeal to Women

Democratic Nominee for Secretary of State Leaves Discussion of Issues and Attacks on Opponent to Men Candidates on Ticket.

Mrs. Kate S. Morrow, Democratic nominee for Secretary of State, is conducting a unique campaign. She has traveled through 75 of Missouri's 114 counties and has delivered as many as 10 addresses a day, but in none of them has she discussed issues or attacked the administration of her Republican opponent, Charles U. Becker.

Memory of man does not go back to the day when one seeking election to office could not pick flaws in the administration of the incumbent. But it appears that in the campaign to wrest the State from the Republicans, Mrs. Morrow has been delegated to win over the women and appeal for a maximum vote.

To the men she leaves the sharp words and vigorous denunciations. It was arranged that Elmer Jones, nominee for Attorney-General, or Carter M. Buford, nominee for Lieutenant-Governor, would point out the deficiencies in Secretary of State Becker's administration, usually from the same platform with which Mrs. Morrow speaks. She merely appeals to the women, asks every voter to exercise the franchise, and promises that her administration will be economical.

Idea of Economy.
Mrs. Morrow's idea of economy are drawn fundamentally from the principles of home management, and are backed by 15 years of experience in State departments at Jefferson City. She will not, however, have economy confused with saving.

"An undirected idea of saving will not be instituted if an elected man," she said, "I will not make ruthless cuts in personnel or practices except where it is apparent that no purpose is accomplished by retaining them. I want to see that the department is conducted with the smallest expenditure consistent with efficiency. My effort will be directed toward giving the best possible administration at the lowest cost."

Mrs. Morrow believes her experience fits her for the position and she is anxious to "show" Missouri that women can handle offices efficiently.

Mrs. Morrow, a widow, is a trim little woman of motherly mien. Her manner of address is pleasing and without oratorical effort. She merely recites her experience at Jefferson City, her belief in the capability of women, and leaves the matter of a choice to the voter.

Her Previous Experience.
Mrs. Morrow is a former secretary of the State Public Service Commission and assistant secretary of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission. She has been an active Democrat since the women's suffrage amendment was adopted and was until recently secretary of the Democratic State Committee.

She spoke at the Town Club and Wednesday Club yesterday. The latter address she pointed out that New Mexico now has a woman for Secretary of State and that Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana and West Virginia have women candidates for that office.

MRS. KATE S. MORROW.

APPEALS FROM HOSPITAL
TO "GET OUT THE VOTE"

Mrs. Mary J. Cowen, Democratic Committeewoman in Twenty-Seventh Ward, Sends Out Communications.

With no prospect of leaving St. John's Hospital before Christmas, Mrs. Mary J. Cowen, 5559 Cote Brillante avenue, Democratic Committeewoman from the Twenty-Seventh Ward, is attempting to "get out the vote" next Tuesday with communications to her friends and meetings with members of her organization.

She was injured Sept. 25, the final day for registration, when an automobile in which she was canvassing her ward ran over an embankment on Hamilton avenue, south of Natural Bridge avenue. She suffered a compound fracture of the pelvis and a broken right arm.

"My chief worry is that women all over the city will wait for their husbands to take them to vote," Mrs. Cowen said today. "The polls close at 7 o'clock Tuesday instead of 9 o'clock, as during registration, and unless women vote early they may be crowded out."

Mrs. Cowen is particularly anxious to see Congressman Hawes re-elected in the Eleventh District.

HELD FOR LEW DOCKSTADER

Several Hundred Men and Women Follow Actor's Body to Church in New York.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Several hundred men and women, who had known Lew Dockstader only as a professional funny man, paid tribute to him yesterday at a simple funeral service.

They gathered silently in front of the Riverside Drive Apartment, where Dockstader lived, and followed the hearse to All Angels Protestant Episcopal Church. Then they crowded the little church to listen to the funeral service read by the Rev. S. de Lancey Town-

75% Of All Sickness caused by clogging

Take constipation seriously; remove it promptly with a stiff dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

AN old-fashioned notion persists that constipation is unavoidable, yet it is easily prevented and may be easily relieved. The fact is that certain foods do not agree with certain people, so avoid those which do not agree with you.

When you feel clogged up take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and relief will come by morning. Many who are habitually constipated take a dose regularly once a week as a precaution.

There are, of course, many other remedies that you can take besides Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Cathartics and physics in the form of pills and powders, however, are harsh and griping. Syrup Pepsin is a liquid, a compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant aromatics, and it acts gently and mildly but emphatically. The formula is on the package.

Candy cathartics, which usually contain phenolphthalein, a coal-tar drug, may cause skin eruptions, and salt waters are simply a purge that dries up the saliva. You are therefore best off with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It has been the standard laxative of thousands of families for more than 30 years, and over 10 million bottles are bought annually.

Every druggist sells it, and at so low a price that an average dose costs less than a cent. Many attribute the unbroken good health of their entire family to the general use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as Mrs. Allie Graham, Handley, Tex., and Mr. A. F. Schmit, 1517 Detroit Ave., Toledo, Ohio. They use it for constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, torpid liver, heart burn, fevers and colds. It contains no narcotics, opiates and is as safe for an infant as for you.

People who know will tell you that Syrup Pepsin is a truly wonderful internal treatment which dispels all forms of intestinal poison resulting from constipation and indigestion, disorders which cause 75 per cent of all the more serious diseases. A spoonful when you are fresh or feel a cold coming on may ward off an illness and save you time, money and inconvenience.

HUGHES ASSERTS U. S. DIPLOMACY IS NOT SECRET

Answering La Follette, He Declares State Department Is Always Ready to Inform Any Senator.

DENIES U. S. ARMS AID FOREIGN LOANS

Avers That American Policy in World Affairs Is One of Independence and Not Isolation.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes was en route to the East today to speak tonight in Buffalo, after completing his campaign tour of the Middle West here last night.

Economics and the Republican foreign policy were the themes of his address here. Proposals of the La Follette-Wheeler independent platform and effects of the third party success were considered.

"It would not take much to destroy our prosperity," he said. "All you have to do is to shatter confidence. This would measurably result if the third party or a combination of our opponents could produce a deadlock in this election."

"The best assurance of prosperity in this country," he declared, "is to secure on Nov. 4 the election of Calvin Coolidge," whom he called "a leader who represents the common sense of America."

Treaties Not Secret.
In his discussion of foreign affairs, he answered Senator La Follette and John W. Davis, the Democratic presidential nominee. He denied the former's assertions that American diplomacy is secret and imperialistic. "Treaties must be submitted to the Senate," he said. "The Department of State is always ready to give information to any Senator who will take the trouble to come to the department to get it."

"It is charged that this Government is engaged in negotiating concessions for our citizens," he continued. "This is untrue. We maintain the principle of the open door, or equality of commercial opportunity, to the end that our citizens shall not suffer unjust discrimination, but shall have the fair opportunity to which they are entitled. With this opportunity they make their own contracts on their own terms."

"The force of American arms is never pledged for the fulfillment of foreign loans or agreements," he said, discussing Senator La Follette's statements regarding American troops in Santo Domingo.

Says Policy Not Isolation.
"Senator La Follette has said two or three times lately that he would take our troops out of Santo Domingo."

"Our troops have been taken out of Santo Domingo. This has been publicly announced, although the fact does not seem to have reached Senator La Follette."

Secretary Hughes asked what the Democratic party proposes in regard to the League of Nations. The Democrats, he said, centered an attack on the fact that this Government had not joined the League of Nations. The Democratic proposal for a referendum on American entry into the league, he termed, "fanciful, illegal and unconstitutional."

"Our policy," he asserted, "is that of co-operation without injurious commitments. It is a policy of independence, not of isolation. We propose to co-operate to promote the interests of peace. We propose at the same time that this country shall not be embroiled in the conflicts of European political interests. Our just influence proceeds by our detachment from such conflicts."

Look for the name on the wrapper.

The richest, most delicate cream cheese made

Do you know the story of the first really fine cream cheese that was ever made in this country?

It was made to order forty years ago for a high class grocer's exclusive customers. And it was called "Philadelphia" Cream Cheese.

That expertness in cream cheese making that first produced this choice delicacy has been carried down from one generation to the next. Today, almost without thinking, you always say "Philadelphia" cream cheese when you want the special richness and sweet freshness of the most delicate cream cheese made.

But note: Not all cream cheese is "Philadelphia." Only the kind made by Phenix, the experts who have been making it for generations, has the name "Philadelphia" on the wrapper.

SUIT OVER ESTATE OF SALOON MAN HEARD

Woman Testifies, in Claim for Dower, She Was Common-law Wife of W. J. Quigley.

Mrs. Mary Mason Quigley, suing for a dower in the estate of William J. Quigley, former saloon keeper at Compton avenue and Olive street, on the ground of a common law marriage, offered testimony yesterday in Judge Peck's court that Quigley kept the marriage secret because his relatives knew he was violating the Volstead act and he feared they would expose him if they knew of the marriage.

Mrs. Quigley alleges she entered into a marriage agreement with Quigley Oct. 10, 1920. She claims to have lost the original agreement but produced a purported copy. There was testimony that the bans for a formal marriage were published in three Catholic churches, but that he persuaded her to dispense with the formal ceremony, because his relatives interfered. She produced a wedding ring engraved "W. J. Q. to M. Q." and a diamond engagement ring.

Mrs. Quigley, in addition to asking a dower, is suing to have set aside a deed conveying flats at 3640 Folsom avenue to a niece of Quigley, Mrs. Mary T. Noonan. Testimony was that Quigley said he did not want his relatives to know he was married because he was having a harvest violating the Volstead law and they would expose him if they knew of a marriage.

It was proved that Mrs. Quigley had continued to be known as Mrs. Mason after the purported marriage. On her behalf it was claimed that this was in deference to Quigley's wishes.

On a previous trial Judge Hartmann held that Mrs. Quigley was Quigley's common law wife, but later set aside the decision. Quigley died Sept. 27, 1921.

COOLIDGE AND DAVIS REPLY TO ARMS LIMITATION QUERY

Committee of Friends Society Publish Statements From Candidates Regarding Geneva Meeting.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22.—The Peace Committee of the Philadelphia Yearly Meeting of Friends made public last night replies it had received from President Coolidge and John W. Davis to questions the committee asked concerning their attitude on American participation in the proposed conference on limitation of armaments in Geneva in 1925.

President Coolidge replied: "This Government is deeply interested in every effort to promote the limitation of armaments and to remove the burden of militarism. This Government has not yet been invited to attend the conference to which reference has been made, nor have we yet been advised that plans to hold such a conference have been perfected. It is our desire that there should be a conference to effect limitation in armaments, and we shall sympathetically consider any invitation that may be received for this purpose, and will gladly give our co-operation, provided we are permitted to do so without commitments which would involve us in European politics or be contrary to the established policies of this country."

John W. Davis replied as follows: "I have frequently said if I were elected President and a conference on disarmament in Geneva in 1925 took place, America would be represented. I have also frequently taken the opportunity to advocate the World Court and to state that we find a complete precedent in our own Supreme Court."

CONDEMNATION SUITS FOR CITY IMPROVEMENTS FILED

Actions Against Property Owners for New Projects Taken—Numerous Residents Affected.

Two suits for the condemnation of property for city improvement projects were filed for under the $87,000,000 bond issue were filed by the city against property owners late yesterday. One of the suits is for the acquisition of land adjacent to the River des Peres for a drainage district through which the proposed River des Peres sewer will be constructed. A strip of ground about eight miles long and 200 feet wide is involved and numerous property owners are affected.

The second suit is for condemnation of property to provide for the widening of St. Louis avenue between Grand boulevard and Kienlen avenue. Both suits ask for the appointment of commissioners to fix the valuation of the affected property.

Cash or Insurance... WHICH? To Help St. Mary's

THE campaign to endow St. Mary's Hospital closes tomorrow night. If you have not yet contributed to this fund, or taken out an endowment insurance policy payable to the Sisters of St. Mary, do so today. We need your help NOW! You can either make a cash subscription or contribute under the endowment insurance plan.

Many persons ask "Can we give $50 or $100 or $200?" Our answer is YES. Every dollar helps. Your cash subscription may be paid either in a lump sum or in installments over a period of five years.

Would You Give a Year of Your Life?

WHEN you are considering what amount you will subscribe to the fund, think of this—how many persons in St. Louis would give a year of their life to doing what the Sisters of St. Mary are doing among the sick and destitute? The Sisters have been serving afflicted humanity for 52 years in St. Louis. They have worked quietly and faithfully, and have asked no praise.

How many of you are working without compensation, as the Sisters are doing? The Sisters have consecrated their lives to hospital service, and serve without pay. Had the community been required to pay for the services the Sisters have rendered during these many years, the sum would have amounted to many times the endowment asked for today.

We owe a duty to the Sisters. They have served the public unceasingly, regardless of creed or nationality. We should lift their debt as a token of our gratitude for their self-sacrifice of half a century. The campaign to raise this fund is drawing to a close. We need your help NOW.

Insurance Plan

FIVE-YEAR endowment policies are being issued in amounts of $250.00 or more to persons between the ages of 10 and 70 years. These policies are payable to the Sisters of St. Mary. Sound business reasons prompted the committee to adopt this Insurance Plan, some of them being:

1—There is absolutely no expense to the Sisters of St. Mary for collecting this fund. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has placed its entire St. Louis organization of more than 400 trained men at the command of the Sisters to establish this endowment fund.

2—The necessity for the Sisters to create an organization to handle the administration of this fund over a period of five years has also been eliminated by this Insurance Plan. The insurance company, with its well organized administrative staff, is handling all the collections over the five-year period and also keeping the fund intact so that the money will be paid to the Sisters in a lump sum. Arrangements are made to furnish the Sisters of St. Mary with a monthly accounting of the fund.

3—Under this gradual-payment plan the fund is protected against the death of any of the contributors. In case of death the full amount of the policy is paid to the Sisters and no further payments are collected on the policy.

4—A subscription to the St. Mary's Endowment Fund on the Insurance Plan, in case of your death, relieves your estate of any liability. The insurance company assumes this risk.

MELLON CALLS ON AMERICANS TO SHUN 'FALSE GODS'

"GROWING MARKETS UNDER DAWES PLAN"

Cites Conditions in Italy and Russia as Warning Against Adoption of Any Radical Changes.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 20-22 Wyatt Building. WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon made his political speech over the radio last night. His voice is seldom heard in public, but the Republican leaders put him in training weeks ago for one of the final appeals to the business interests of the nation.

While slow in delivery and halting in debate, Mellon knows how to drive home an argument, and his address was considered a gem by the "Old Guard" Republicans, who believe the promise of greater prosperity will count in the final hours of the presidential campaign.

"I have little sympathy in quacks," declared Mellon, discussing partisan promises. "Our ills, as they arise from time to time, should be cured not by the incantation of a witch doctor, but by the well-tried economic principles and the intelligence and initiative of the American people."

Country's Position Unsurpassed. "Our position today, at home and abroad, is unsurpassed. Our good wages, ample employment, better agriculture and strong credit call for no change in administration, but for common sense to hold and to enjoy these advantages."

Mellon spoke for sound government and economy. He declared that in the last three years expenditures had been cut from $4,800,000,000 to $3,500,000,000, and taxes reduced from $54 for each man, woman and child to $27, the rate for next year.

The Dawes plan, he said, "is one of the most important forward steps ever taken in international co-operation." It will result in a prosperous world and a quickening of "our own economic development."

Mellon cited Italy to show that "economic fallacies must be paid for and the cost met by the whole people." Russia tried the experiment of unsound government and "brought destruction, final and complete."

Attacks New Theories. "In our country," he asserted, "we have avoided false gods in the past. You will recall that we escaped trial of that principal plank of a former Democratic platform, which maintained that the unlimited collapse of silver in the ratio of 16 to 1 was the sole means by which we might be saved."

"But new theories are being continually presented, and we should, thereafter, analyze the political promises of today. So when a candidate proposes to cut the revenue from tariff and taxes, which are the two usual sources of Government receipts, he should explain where he will find $3,000,000,000 to run the Government; when another candidate proposes to embark the Government in railroad and water power ownership; to increase wages; to decrease freight rates; to increase prices; to decrease cost of living, and to indulge generally in an orgy of spending, let him submit the details of his budget. I am sure no Secretary of the Treasury could make it balance."

GUTTER FAILS IN ATTEMPT TO RESCUE 4 MEN IN ARCTIC

The Mojave Is Unable to Force Way to Point Where Schooner Was Carried Away in Ice.

NOME, Alaska, Oct. 29.—The cutter Mojave of the United States Coast Guard, which attempted to penetrate the Arctic Ocean to rescue four men from the gasoline schooner Silver Wave, which was carried away locked in ice, has turned back, according to word received here.

The Mojave, which went from Nome for Hering Strait, forced her way many miles through pack ice, but was unable to approach the point 180 miles north of the strait where the Silver Wave was last seen, after being caught in the grasp of the ice as she was hurrying back from the last trip for the season on her mail run into Kotzebue Sound, an arm of the Arctic.

To Prosecute Deputy Sheriffs. By the Associated Press. PARIS, Ill., Oct. 29.—Mayor Rittenhouse and City Attorney Van Sellen were yesterday given authority by City Council to employ special counsel to prosecute six Deputy Sheriffs who are alleged to have stood by as several prisoners whipped special policeman Frank Kalso in the county jail Monday night. Kalso was arrested a few days ago by county officers after taking into custody a Deputy Sheriff whom he accused of violating a traffic law.

CANADA IS REDUCING BALANCE OF TRADE NOW FAVORING U. S.

Her Exports Increased $12,000,000 and Imports Slumped $75,000,000 in Last 12 Months.

By the Associated Press. OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 29.—The balance of trade between Canada and the United States is rapidly becoming more favorable to Canada, Government reports show.

In the 12 months ended September, Canada's exports to the United States were valued at $419,814,635, or $13,000,000 more than in the previous year. Imports from the United States, however, were $541,736,242, a decrease of $75,000,000. The unfavorable balance of trade, that is, the excess of imports over exports, was $126,000,000 less than it was in the 12 months ended September, 1933.

Why America Must Have More Paved Highways

Almost every section of the United States is confronted by a traffic problem.

Month by month this problem is becoming more and more serious.

Hundreds of cars pass a given point every hour on many of our state and county roads. Down-town city streets are jammed with traffic.

Think, too, how narrow many of our roads are, and how comparatively few paved highways there are in proportion to the steadily increasing number of cars.

If the motor vehicle is to continue giving the economic service of which it is capable, we must have more concrete highways and widen those near large centers of population.

Every citizen should discuss highway needs of his community with his local authorities.

Your highway officials will do their part if given your support.

An early start means early relief.

You'll Never Know

What pretty teeth you have until you remove that dingy film that's clouding them

Mail the coupon, please. Make this unique test

DENTAL authorities now say that, strangely enough, most people who envy white and glistening teeth already have them, but don't realize it.

This is the reason they give: Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel a film. A film which absorbs discolorations and hides the natural color of your teeth.

Remove it and your teeth take on a new beauty. Maybe you have really beautiful teeth without realizing it.

Film is charged too with most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs breed in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

So, besides loss of tooth beauty, film is a serious danger to healthy teeth. You must remove and constantly combat it. It is ever present, ever forming.

Old-time dentifrices were unable to combat it successfully. And tooth troubles were a serious problem.

Now modern science has discovered a new way. A new-type tooth paste called Pepsodent that acts to curdle film, then harmlessly to remove it. No soap or chalk, no harsh grit dangerous to enamel.

Mail the coupon for a 10-day tube free. Or, buy a full size tube at any drugist's today. See what beauty lies beneath the film on your teeth.

LEVY, PIKER FULLBACK, LIKELY TO BE TARGET OF JAYHAWKER ATTACK

All Washington Regulars to Be in Game Saturday

Backfield Will Be Strongest of Francis Field Eleven in Several Years.

ENDS TO PLAY BIG PART

Contest Will End Homecoming Celebration of W. U., Which Will Start Friday.

The Washington-Kansas University football game at Francis Field Saturday afternoon will be the climax of a series of celebrations which will feature the Piker homecoming. Festivities will start Friday evening and will include banquet, open house on the campus, parade and a cross-country race just before the football game. The Piker harriers will compete with Bradley Polytechnic of Peoria. One of the interesting facts connected with Saturday's game is that former Gov. Hadley, Chancellor of Washington, was graduated from the University of Kansas.

With the Pikers expecting to show their strongest front to the Jayhawkers, the Red and Green coaches took no chance of crippling any of the players in scrimmages yesterday, and instead confined the practice to routine work and a "dummy" scrimmage with new players against the freshmen. There will be scrimmages this afternoon, however, and probably a little more tomorrow, with a light workout the afternoon before the game.

Ingram on Field.
Jimmy Ingram, halfback, injured in the Red's game, although not in uniform, followed the team around and studied the plays. He is almost sure to be in shape by Saturday. A regular line man, is expected to report for service this afternoon. If these two players improve as the coaches expect them to, and there are no injuries in practice, every Piker regular will be available to resist the Jayhawk invasion.

The backfield which will face Kansas will, in all probability, be the best-balanced quartet that has represented Washington in a number of years. Reports from Kansas have it that the Jayhawkers are planning especially to stop Charley Levy, Piker fullback.

Levy, besides being a demon on defense, can punt, plunge and pass, and is the nearest approach to a "triple threat" man the Jayhawk has known for some time. Although Levy will stand plenty of watching, the Jayhawkers will make a big mistake if they overlook the rest of the backfield.

Other Good Backs.
Capt. Walsh and Lyle have been doing some excellent ball-toting this year, and Lyle is also able to punt. Ingram is a hard-driving back, who, like Levy, can pass and kick. Sam Floun is one of the best plungers on the squad, and Al Hayes is as fast as a flash and throws a fine pass. In addition, there are Joe Herbert, Cheatham and Sid Weber, all experienced players who would be at home in a big game.

Considering weight, speed and versatility, the Piker backfield ought not to be outclassed, and if any interference is provided, ground-gaining ought to be reasonably consistent. On the line, the Pikers have a collection of players averaging around 180 pounds with a number of equally good men on the sidelines ready to take their places.

Although there are several inexperienced men in the line, the forward defense includes a number of seasoned players, enough of them to give balance and steadiness to the unit that must bear the brunt of battle. Kurrus and Neupner, guards, and Well and Gregg, tackles, are letter-men. Fred Webster, center, is playing his first year of varsity football, but works like a veteran. Avis, Starkoff, Inman and Pursell will be ready to fill a place when necessary.

Line Has Withstood Attacks.
These men are well able to take care of the line between the ends. Grinnell gained very little through the Piker line and the plunging Rolka backs got nothing there, either, when one yard would have given them a touchdown last week. Much of the burden of stopping the Kansas attack will rest on the wing men, particularly Goswami and Stanwood. The Pikers were weak at the ends against Grinnell, but the ends learned much in that game.

Kansas, besides plunging, frequently resorts to end runs and passes from end run formations. It will be up to the Piker wing men to stop the Jayhawkers backfield before the plays get fully developed. In addition to Goswami and Stanwood, Coach Wimberly has Niemoeller, Avis, Willman and Matene to use on the wings.

In view of the fact that fumbles have played a prominent part in every Kansas defeat this season, the Piker coaches are instructing their men to be on the alert for a loose ball. Since the Jayhawkers have been showing such a marked tendency to fumble, it is believed that an occasional loose ball may be picked up if the Piker line and ends get in fact on the Jayhawk backs.

Kansas Speeds Up in Practice For the Pikers

Jayhawkers, Stung by Successive Defeats, Hope to Start Winning Saturday.

Columbia Eleven to Play Out Season's Football Schedule

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—COLUMBIA will close her gridiron ranks and carry on the 1924 football campaign in spite of blow sustained by the death of Head Coach Percy D. Haughton.

This was decided yesterday by university athletic authorities, who announced that the game at Ithaca next Saturday with Cornell, as well as those with New York University, Army and Syracuse, would be played as scheduled.

At the same time Dr. Paul C. Withington, former pupil of and first assistant at Columbia to Haughton, was appointed head coach for the rest of the season.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Oct. 29.—Scrimmage until long after dark was the menu of the Jayhawk football squad yesterday and every regular with the exception of Walters, sub quarter, and Mullins and E. Smith, tackles, who are nursing injuries, was given a staff workout. Three sets of backs worked behind the line in succession for some time before scrimmage, the line remaining stationary while the backs executed passes and runs around the ends.

The first string backs were Zuber and Starr at the halves and Captain Burt at fullback; the next line-up saw Hart, Anderson and Coulter in action, while the third string was Lindsey, Isett and Millman. Hodges, Wellman and Isett worked as quarterbacks.

In scrimmage much attention was paid to tackling and the coaches found much to criticize. After an hour's work, however, the tackling improved.

The coaches are confident they have dispelled any quickness the varsity may have had over the coming game with Washington, and the football lads are down to work in earnest to get into top speed for the Piker game. With only four chances left to turn in victories and save a poor season, the Jayhawkers are determined to leave nothing undone to perfect their play. With nothing but defeat in the record every effort will be thrown into winning each game.

RULE COVERING CASE OF BOXERS KNOCKED FROM RING IS AMENDED

When to Start Count Put Up To the Referee

Point of Discussion After Firpo-Dempsey Bout Taken Up by National Body.

TITLEHOLDERS NAMED

Delegates Express Opinion Man Should Have More Time to Climb Back Into Ring.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 29.—If Firpo should meet Jack Dempsey again and once more knock the world's champion from the ring, there would be no argument as to whether Dempsey returned to the ring before the referee counted ten. That point was settled for all time by the National Boxing Body here yesterday, at the annual meeting of delegates representing nearly a score of affiliated states.

The delegates went on record by amendment to the rules giving the referee final power to determine whether the boxer should be counted out while he is still outside the ring.

This point raised much discussion following the Dempsey-Firpo fight and has been the cause of controversy and discussion in other quarters. It was the sense of the delegates that a boxer could not be expected to climb back into the ring from the arena floor in the time that he could rise from the canvas.

The meeting did other notable work yesterday which may be summarized as follows:

Named Atlanta, Ga., as its next meeting place.

Named the rightful holders of the title in the various ring classes.

Ordered secretaries of local commissions to telegraph results of each match to the national body.

Ordered the secretary to compile a table of such performances and mail copies weekly to each commission.

Voted to tax each promoter $5 each boxer $1 annually (outside of all cities outside of the).

An interesting announcement was made to the effect that Minnesota had joined the organization.

List of Champions.

W. R. Dempsey — heavy.

MIKE McTIGUE, light heavyweight.

HARRY GRIER, middleweight.

MICKEY WALKER, welterweight.

MIKEY MITCHELL, junior lightweight.

BENNY LEONARD, lightweight.

ARE GOLDSTEIN, bantamweight.

PANCHO VILLA, flyweight.

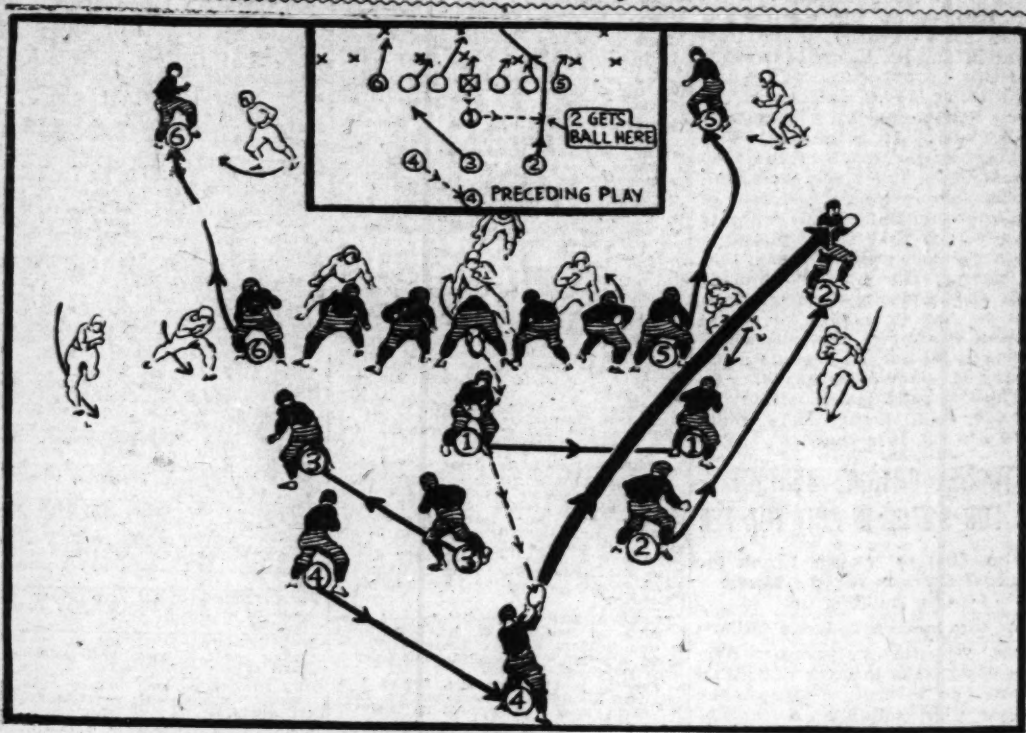

The featherweight situation is due to the retirement of Johnny Dundee and the failure of the New York Commission to designate a man to replace him. The next holder of this title is to be determined by elimination.

To make clear the ruling on the heavyweights, boxing champion, W. R. Shaw, secretary of the National Boxing Association last night announced that Mike McTigue was designated as the world's titleholder, with Gene Tunney as the American titleholder.

At the same time, Baltimore, Md., was named president to succeed R. T. Burke, while the secretary and treasurer, W. R. Shaw, was unanimously elected.

The next convention, scheduled to Atlanta, Ga., will be held next October.

Winning Football Plays—No. 19

THORPE'S NEW YORK UNIVERSITY FORWARD PASS.

COACH Tom Thorpe of New York University recommends the accompanying plays, a forward pass after a quick opening formation.

As shown in the small diagram the quick opening play depends on clean handling of the ball and fast starting by the backfield.

Center passes ball to quarterback, No. 1.

Right halfback, No. 2, starts at snap of ball to opening between tackle and end. Quarter

Fullback, No. 3, makes bluff for cross back.

After quick opening formation a forward pass can be employed with best results.

Right half, No. 2, runs as if to hit tackle and goes out for pass.

Right end, No. 5, does the same thing.

The pass must be quick and from eight to ten yards. Pass is made to either end.

Hoppe Is Winner Over Gus Copulos

Balkline Champion Gains 200-172 Victory in Three-Cushion Match.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 29.—Willie Hoppe, balkline champion, defeated Gus Copulos, local three-cushion star, in their 200-point three-cushion match game at recreation parlors, 200 to 172, in 187 innings.

Hoppe took the lead in the third ball, played yesterday afternoon when he scored 55 points to his opponent's 32. He also won the evening's block, 50 to 40 in 45 innings.

Hoppe's high run for the series was eight, while Copulos had a clue of 10.

Last Night's Fights

BOSTON.—Young Bob Fitzsimmons of Newark, N. J., won over Joe Burke of Detroit when the referee stopped their scheduled 10-round bout in the third round.

Fitzsimmons had pounded Burke on the body and face in aggressive lightning from the opening bell. Burke weighed in at 192 pounds while Fitzsimmons was 11 pounds lighter.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Bobby Green, San Antonio welterweight, had a slight edge over Kid Rich of Oklahoma City in their 10-round bout. Jack Fowler won from Bert Brannan in eight rounds. They are lightweights.

SANTA FE, N. M.—Jimmy Lanning, Wichita, Kan., lightweight, won from Eddie McCarthy of Denver on a foul in the third of a scheduled 12-round bout.

NEW YORK.—Vic Hirsch, Detroit, substituting for Sailor Freedman, Philadelphia, held Paul Doyle, New York, welterweight, to a draw in 10 rounds.

Dolan Has No Right To Include Him in Suit, Says Johnson

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—President Ben Johnson of the American League said last night that he was not responsible for the action taken against Cozy Dolan and Jimmy O'Connell of the Giants as a result of the scandal just preceding the world series and that Dolan therefore had no right to include him as a defendant in his threatened $100,000 suit for slander.

Johnson said he had not even been invited by Commissioner Landis to attend meetings to make the preliminary arrangements for the series, and was not consulted in regard to the alleged attempt to bribe player Sand.

"The first I knew about the scandal," he said, "including the expulsion of Dolan and O'Connell, was when I read it in the newspapers."

LAYTON DOUBLE VICTOR IN 3-CUSHION MATCHES WITH BOSTON ENTRANT

Johnny Layton, local entrant in the National Three-Cushion League, gained a double victory over Earl Lookabaugh of Boston yesterday. In the afternoon match, at the Rogers Recreation, Layton won, 50 to 35, in 68 innings. In the evening, at the Layton-McHenry hall, the local star defeated his Boston rival, 50 to 25, in 48 innings. Layton had high runs of seven and six, while Lookabaugh's best was four.

Central Football Squad Ready To Oppose McKinley Saturday

Mike Walker Has His Team Working Smoothly Despite Lack of Practice — Yeatman and Cleveland Open Campaign Friday at Francis Field.

The unusual spectacle of rival high school football teams practicing earnestly on adjacent fields without paying heed to each other may be viewed at Fairground Park each afternoon between 3 and 5 o'clock.

Central and Yeatman are working hard under Coaches Walker and Lewis in preparation for the opening of the High School League season Friday. Yeatman meets Cleveland Friday afternoon at Francis Field and Central opposes McKinley at St. Louis University Field at 10 a. m. Saturday.

In spite of the fact that Central started several weeks behind its rivals because of a disagreement over the Thomas case, Walker has his squad in very excellent shape. He has a bigger squad than Yeatman, both in numbers and in the size of the individual athletes composing the squad. Yesterday, in going through a long scrimmage against the second team, Central showed a fine running attack and a good overhead game. Line plunging was not especially remarkable but the sweeps around end and through tackle were well executed. Walker's lads employ the huddle system in calling signals.

Yeatman Lacks Dash.

Cup Donated for International College Tennis

Yale, Harvard, Oxford and Cambridge to Compete for Trophy.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—International intercollegiate tennis competition has been stimulated by the addition of a perpetual trophy donated by Berenon S. Prentiss, president of the Seabright, N. J., Tennis and Cricket Club. It bears the title "International intercollegiate tennis trophy," and will be played for at least once every two years between undergraduate teams of Oxford and Cambridge universities of England, and Yale and Harvard universities of the United States.

Four matches have been played between the combined Oxford-Cambridge and Yale-Harvard teams, the American colleges having won three of them. It is proposed that the matches in the future be held alternately in the United States and England, regardless of which group holds the trophy.

It is expected that the English collegians will invade the United States for the fifth of the series of matches next summer in what will mark initial play for the new Prentiss Cup, which may eventually take its place alongside of the Davis Cup, Wightman Cup, and other famous tennis trophies.

The donor of the trophy was graduated from Harvard University in 1905, in which year he was president of the Intercollegiate Tennis Association, champion and captain of the college team. He is chairman of the intercollegiate committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association and a member of the Davis Cup and selection committees.

FIGHT BETWEEN HAWES AND HART GROWING WARM

Opponents for Congress in the Eleventh District Nightly Lambasting Each Other in Speeches.

The Hawes-Hart congressional fight in the Eleventh District has become the "hot spot" of the St. Louis campaign. Congressman Hawes and his Republican opponent, Michael J. Hart, Associate City Counselor, are nightly lambasting each other in speeches throughout North and Northwest St. Louis.

The contest between them is considered close, because of the increased negro population in the district, and because of the endorsement of Hart by railroad labor bodies. This led to an attempt to place Hart's name on the Liberal (La Follette) ticket, which Hawes blocked last week by an appeal to the courts.

Hart, speaking in a Twentieth Ward meeting last night, took up an allusion made by Hawes to him as a "law clerk at the City Hall." Hart said in reply that he had been engaged in active law practice since his graduation from law school in 1915. As Associate City Counselor, he said, he had been instrumental in saving the city from several large judgments.

He went on to charge that Hawes, who was admitted to the practice of law here 25 years ago, had never appeared in court, except once in the Probate Court. "He has lived by his wife and his maneuvering as a politician," Hart declared.

Hawes has attacked Hart for disloyalty to the Republic party, in accepting a Liberal party endorsement. To this, Hart replied: "Mr. Hawes' interest in the Republican party is a very recent development. I wonder if he thinks that the voters of this city and of this district do not remember the days of the Harry Hawes Police Board, of the infamous Nesbit law of the times when it was unsafe for anyone who was not affiliated with his gangs of ruffians and 'indians' to appear on the streets on election day. I wonder if he thinks the Republicans do not recall the elections of 1902 and 1904 when the Police Department, of which he was the head and the dominating influence, was used to coerce, to threaten and to violently assault innocent voters who dared to vote at the polling places and vote contrary to his wishes and his interests."

Hart cited passages in the Congressional Record, bearing on election contests, as evidence of violence and fraud practiced in the period of which he spoke. "And this is the same Harry B. Hawes," Hart exclaimed, "who poses as the defender of constitutional rights. Mr. Hawes has done more to deprive honest citizens of the rights guaranteed them by the constitution than any other man who ever lived in St. Louis."

He then attacked Hawes for his opposition to the Child Labor amendment, and charged that "a slush fund is being created by big business interests to put Hawes over for Congress." He said that individuals were paying for advertising for Hawes so that the figures would not have to be included later in Hawes' sworn statement of campaign expenditures.

Hawes spoke last night at a meeting of the Third, Fourth and Eighth Wards at Twentieth street and Cass avenue. He again assailed Hart for attempting to run on both the Coolidge and the La Follette tickets.

Edna Ferber

TWENTY-SEVEN

DIRK was wide awake now; eager, excited. The lights, the men, the horses, the sound of talk, and laughter, and clinking glasses from the eating houses along the street were bewilderingly strange to his country-bred eyes and ears. He called to the horses; stood up in the wagon; but clung closer to her as they found themselves in the thick of the melee.

On the street corners where the lights were brightest there were stands at which men sold chocolate, cigars, collar buttons, suspenders, shoe strings, patent contrivances. It was like a fair. Farther down the men's faces loomed mysteriously out of the half light. Stolid, sunburned faces now looked dark, terrifying, the whites of the eyes very white, the mustaches very black, their shoulders enormous. Here was a crap game beneath the street light. There stood two girls laughing and chatting with a policeman.

"Here's a good place, mother."

"Here! There's a dog on that wagon."

"Like Pom?"

"Pom, hearing his name, stood up, looked into the boy's face, quivered, wagged a nervous tail, barked sharply. The Haymarket night life was an old story to Pom, but it never failed to stimulate him. When Pervus was absent for a short time. He would stand on the seat ready to growl at any one who so much as fingered a radish in Pervus' absence."

"Down, Pom! Quiet, Pom!" She did not want to attract attention to herself and the boy. It was still early. She had made excellent time. Pervus had often slept in snatches as he drove into town and the horses had lagged, but Selma had urged them on tonight. They had gained a good half hour over the usual time. Halfway down the block Selma applied the place she wanted. From the opposite direction came a truck farmer's cart obviously making for the same stand. For the first time that night Selma clipped sharply her surprised nags. With a start and a shuffle they broke into an awkward lunge. Two seconds too late the German farmer perceived her intention, whipped up his own tired team, arrived at the spot just as Selma, blocking the way, prepared to back into the vacant space.

"Hah, get out of there, you!" he roared; then, for the first time, perceived in the dim light of the street that his rival was a woman. He faltered, started open-mouthed, tried other tactics. "You can't go in there, missus."

"Oh, yes, I can." She backed her team dexterously.

"Yes, you can!" shouted Dirk in an attitude of fierceelligence.

From the wagons on either side heads were lifted. "Where's your man?" demanded the defeated driver, glaring.

"Here," cried Selma; put her hand on Dirk's head.

The other, preparing to drive on, received this with incredulity. He assumed the existence of a husband in the neighborhood—at Chris Spank's, certainly, or of talking prices with a friend at another wagon when he should be here attending to his own. In the absence of this, her natural protection, he relented his disgruntled feelings as he gathered up the reins. "Woman ain't got no business here in Haymarket, anyway. Better you're home night time in your kitchen where you belong."

This admonition so glibly mouthed by so many people in the past few days, now was uttered once too often. Selma's nerves snapped. A surprised German truck farmer found himself being hampered from the driver's seat of a vegetable wagon by an irate and fluent woman in a mashed black hat.

"Don't talk to me like that, you great stupid! What good does it do a woman to stay home in her kitchen if she's going to starve there, and her boy with her! Staying home in my kitchen won't earn me any money. I'm here to sell the vegetables I helped raise and I'm going to do it. Get out of my way, you. Go along about your business or I'll report you to Mike, the street policeman."

Now she chambered over the wagon wheel to unhitch the tired horse. It is impossible to tell what interpretation the dumfounded North Rider put upon her movements. Certainly he had nothing to fear from this small, gaunt creature with the blazing eyes. Nevertheless, as he gathered up his reins terror was writ large on his rubicund face.

"Trouble! What a woman!" Was off in a clatter of wheels and hoofs on the cobblestones.

Selma unharnessed swiftly. "You stay here, Dirk, with Pom. Mother'll be back in a minute." She marched down the street driving the horses to the barn where, for 25 cents, the animals were to be housed in more comfort than their owner. She returned to find Dirk deep in conversation with two young women in red shirtwaists, plaid skirts that swept the ground, and sailor hats tipped at a saucy angle over pyramidal pompadours.

"I can't make any sense out of it, can you, Elsie? Sounds like Dirk to me, but nobody's going to name a kid that, are they? Stands to reason."

"Oh, come on. Your name'll be mud first thing you know. Here! It's after 9 already and not a —" she turned and saw Selma's white face.

"There's my mother," said Dirk, triumphantly, pointing. The three women looked at each other. Two saw the pathetic hat and the dowdy clothes, and knew. One saw the red shirtwaist and the loose red lips, and knew.

"We was just talking to the kid," said the girl who had been puzzled by Dirk's name. Her tone was defensive. "Just asking him his name, and like that."

"His name is Dirk," said Selma, mildly. "It's a Dutch name—Holland, you know. We're from out High Prairie way, south. Dirk De Jong. I'm Mrs. DeJong."

"Teh!" said the other girl. "I'm Elsie. Elsie from Chelsea, that's me. Come on, Mabel, Stand gabbin' all night." She was blonde and shrill. The other was older, dark-haired. There was about her a paradoxical wholesomeness.

Mabel, the older one, looked at Selma sharply. From the next wagon came loud snoring issuing from beneath the seat. From down the line where a lantern swung from the tailboard of a cart came the rattle of dice. "What you doing down here, anyway?"

"I'm here to sell my stuff to-morrow morning. Vegetables."

From a wagon nearby, a man's head appeared around. Here was not a quick mind. "Where's your man?"

"My husband died a week ago," Selma was making up their bed for the night. From beneath the seat she took a sack of hay, tightly packed, shook out its contents, spread them evenly on the floor of the wagon, at the front, first having unhinged the seat and clapped it against the wagon side as a headboard. Over the hay she spread empty sackings. She shook out her shawl, which would serve as cover. The girl Mabel beheld these preparations. Her dull eyes showed a gleam of interest which deepened.

"Say, you ain't never going to sleep out here, are you? You and the kid. Like that?"

"Yes."

"Well, for —" She stared, turned to go, came back. From her belt that dipped so stylishly in the front hung an arsenal of jangling metal articles—purse, pencil, mirror, comb—a chatelaine, they called it. She opened the purse and took from it a silver dollar. This she tendered Selma, almost roughly.

"Here. Get the kid a decent roof for the night. You and the kid, see?"

Selma stared at the shining round dollar; at Mabel's face. The quick sting of tears came to her eyes. She shook her head, smiled. "We don't mind sleeping out here. Thank you just the same—Mabel."

The girl put her dollar plumply back into her purse. "Well, takes all kinds, I always say. I thought I had a bum deal, but, say, along side of what you got I ain't got it so worse. Fine to sleep in, anywhere, even if it is—well, good night. Listen to that Elsie, hollerin' for me. I'm comin'! Shut up!"

You heard the two on their way up the street, arm in arm, laughing.

"Come, Dirk."

"Are we going to sleep here?" He was delighted.

"Right here, all snuggled in the hay, like campers."

"Isn't it, Dirk—not 'ain't it'?" The school teacher.

She lay down beside him. The boy seemed terribly wide awake. "I liked the Mabel one best, didn't you? She was the nicest, h'm?"

"Oh, much the nicest," said Selma, and put one arm around him and drew him to her, close. And suddenly he was asleep, deeply. The street became quieter. The talking and laughter ceased. The lights were dim as Chris Spank nee'd's. Now and then the clatter of wheels and horses' hoofs proclaimed a late comer seeking a place, but the sound was not near by, for this block and those to the east and west were filled by now. These men had been up at 4 in the morning, must be up before 4 the next.

The night was cool, but not cold. Overhead you saw the wide strip

Headliners

DOING THEIR STUFF

DRAWN BY
NELL BRINKLEY

SOME girls on the stage of life were meant to juggle hearts. They were born with curling, open fingers that Love knew would some day close on one after another and limply and dexterously send them twirling away one after another, only to return to her to be discarded again—and again to repeat the dizzy orbit, just as long as the little artist wanted them to. And Love knew, too, that so long as she wished him to, HE would hold the supply to replace those that might rarely fall and break; or to add to the already amazing number that this is, well, Desire, could keep in the air at one and the same time.

For there, you see, comes in the headliner. The real artist does not break the hearts she juggles. She keeps them going, they are all hers to manipulate, and she puts them all back safe in the basket again after she has played her little play. And even after she marries, the hearts that were hers, still are—in a fine manner that proves them to be without real injury.

But just as sparks are meant by the good and divine God to flee upward, so are some girl-babies born to be miraculous jugglers of hearts, whether they will or not.

Love was the fairy that hid behind the curtains of their cribs at the christening.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Try Light Massages for New Beauty

of sky between the brick buildings on either side of the street. Two men came along singing. "Shut up!" growled a voice from a wagon along the curb. The singers subsided. It must be 10 o'clock and after, Selma thought. She had with her Pervus' nickel watch, but it was too dark to see its face, and she did not want to risk a match. Measured footsteps that passed and repassed at regular intervals. The night policeman.

She lay looking up at the sky. There were no stars in her eyes. She was past tears. She thought, "Here I am, Selma Peaks, sleeping in a wagon, in the straw, like a bitch with my puppy snuggled beside me. I was going to be like Jo in Louisa Alcott's book. On my feet are boots and on my body a dyed dress. How terribly long it is going to be until morning. I must try to sleep."

She did sleep, miraculously. The September stars twinkled brightly down on them. As she lay there, the child in her arms, asleep, peace came to the haggard face, relaxed the tired limbs. Much like another woman who had lain in the straw with her child in her arms almost 2000 years before.

Among the things she told me, one of the most important is to remember that the surroundings of the eyes are as important as the eyes themselves. You must keep lines away from your eyes by keeping them well rested, but if you will also massage them lightly for a few minutes in the morning or at night, your eyes will profit by this beauty practice. Do not massage them longer than three or four minutes, as too much massage will tire the delicate muscles about your eyes and make them sag.

The movement is simply this: Use the tips of your second and third fingers and rub with a light rotary motion, outward and away from the corners of your eyes. Never touch the soft skin directly beneath your eyes, as this will cause the delicate muscles here to sag, and will eventually make wrinkles. You may also massage above and along the upper edge of your eyebrows with the same fingers. You have but to try this once to feel how restful and soothing it is.

Another excellent massage movement is, with the same second and third fingers, to stroke the muscles that lie along the upper edges of your cheek bones. The stroke you use here should be a slow sweeping one from the lower corner of the eye to the edge of the hairline.

Another restful massage movement for your mouth and nose is the following:

With the tips of the middle fingers of each hand, massage lightly upward from the corners of your mouth, slanting in to the corners of your nose. From here slope up and out to your hairline. You will find that this rests the muscles which reach from your nose down to the corners of your mouth.

For the muscles of your throat, you will find it helpful to massage upward with the fingers of both hands, starting low on your collarbone and throwing your head back, so you may run your massage movement straight up to the tip of your chin.

If you are stout use one of the beltless tunic patterns for your next dress. If you really are averse to the new unbroken line from shoulder to hem, just drape the dress slightly at one side with a fringed ornament. If you really must have a belt, make this very, very narrow, and tie it so as not to disturb that long, straight line.

Parboli one large, firm eggplant until tender. Slice it in thick slices. Have ready some firm, large tomatoes, also sliced in thick slices. Wipe the inside of a baking pan with a cut bud of garlic, then butter it. Brush over the slices of eggplant and lay them on the bottom of the pan. Dip each slice of tomato into melted butter, then into seasoned crumbs, and lay a slice on each slice of eggplant. Sprinkle with a little sugar, dot with butter, dredge very lightly with flour, lay a slice of bacon on top of each, and bake a delicate brown in a medium oven. Serve on a hot dish after lifting carefully with a turner, and garnish with parsley.

HOMEMAKING HELPS

Painted furniture has a stay, though many of us on it as a passing fancy. It has many points of interest. First, it may be for any color scheme; second, it may be to revamp old furniture, and, again, it appeals to the modest pocketbook and is kept clean or refreshed if it is unpainted pieces are appearing in the shops in variety, ready for the home. The pieces are made of wood, free from lacquer, smooth and ready to use. The pieces even come in well-known period styles. This is fine for those who have painted stuff at home, but for those who have to do with old things, it is wise to know how it may be done in the way.

Of course, the old things be thoroughly repaired. Instances mirrors are removed, so the revived piece become a high or low-boy. Soda water to remove the old paint. Sometimes this takes more applications. Then the face is carefully sanded, remove any finish that is on and to make the surface ready for the paint.

DAILY CROSS WORD PUZZLE

Copyright, 1924—Simon & Schuster, Inc.

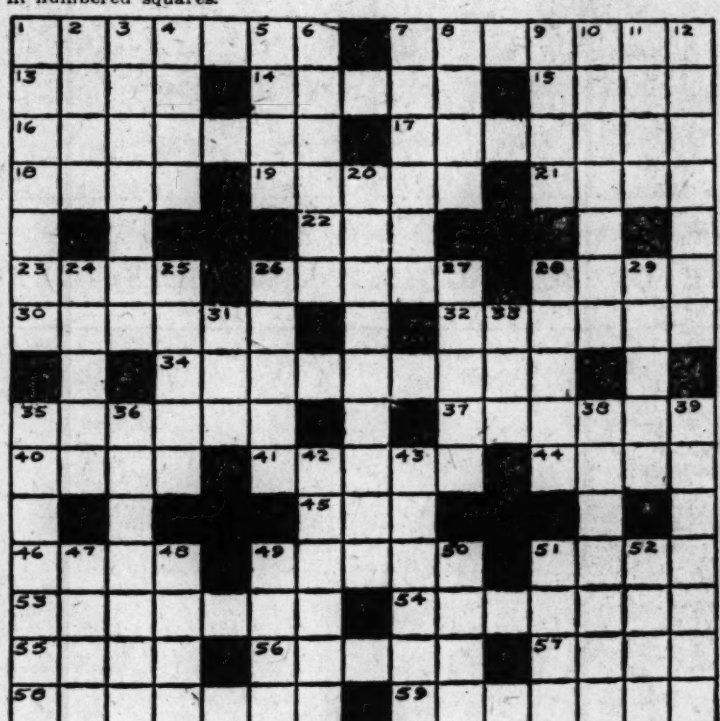

Each number in the puzzle indicates the position of the first letter of a word.

Each word reads from left to right (horizontal) or downward (vertical), according to position. Lettered in correctly, words that cross will interlock.

Each definition suggests a word possessing the exact number of letters to fit the white space allotted to it.

Each white space is to receive one letter only. Words start only in numbered squares.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Use the Correct Utensil.

Keep the can opener and cork screw in a fixed place. Then you will not be tempted to use a knife in place of these articles and receive a nasty cut by doing so.

Housewife's Exchange.

Pack away the summer flannels in dark blue tissue paper. The iron sink will clean nicely with steel wool moistened with linseed oil.

Ammonia will take away that greasy look from coat collars. Unlabeled lime applied with a garden spray to the moldy cellar walls will freshen the atmosphere of the entire house.

Cabbage-Like Lettuce.

The California lettuce is delicious, but very difficult to separate. This method is quite successful: With a pointed knife remove the heart or stem for about one inch deep. Then hold the lettuce under the cold-water spigot, allowing a good stream of water to run into the place where you have removed the stem. You will be able to separate the leaves easily and at the same time they will be cleaned and freshened.

Escalloped Eggplant.

Peel and dice two eggplants. Dice an equal quantity of firm, ripe tomatoes that have been peeled. Dust with pepper, salt, a little sugar, a tablespoonful of onion juice and a saltspoonful of curry powder. Wipe a shallow pudding dish with a cut bud of garlic, then butter it well. Put in alternate layers of eggplant, tomatoes and dry crumbs, dot with plenty of butter, and on the top layer of crumbs mix two slices of bacon chopped fine. Sprinkle with about a teaspoonful of grated sharp cheese and turn over all a half cupful of strained tomato juice. Bake a half to three-quarters of an hour until the scallop is a delicate brown.

Bobby Understands at Last

Pain and fright may be so great That one cares little what his fate.

—Bobby Coon.

BOBBY COON didn't know what to make of it. He was being carried away by Farmer Brown's Boy, but where he was being carried to he didn't know. You see, he was wrapped up in the coat of Farmer Brown's Boy, so that he couldn't see. At first he had tried to struggle, but he soon found that this was useless and gave it up. He felt pretty badly, but Bobby Coon. What with the fright he had suffered and the aching of that swollen leg to which a little tin can was fast, Bobby Coon felt sick. He felt too sick to care very much what happened. So he soon gave up trying to struggle and lay quiet in Farmer Brown's Boy's arms.

Farmer Brown's Boy held him as gently as he could and did his best to keep from touching that swollen leg. Bowser the Hound trotted at his master's heels. He looked very much pleased with himself and well satisfied. He had followed Bobby Coon's trail. He had followed it with that wonderful nose of his, and finally he had shown his master where Bobby Coon was. Now his master had Bobby Coon and Bowser was no longer interested in him. What would become of him Bowser didn't know and didn't care. Up the Lone Little Path through the Green Forest they went, then into the Old Orchard, and through the Old Orchard to the farmyard and across this to the house.

"For goodness sake, son, what have you there?" demanded Mrs. Brown.

"A friend of mine who is in a peck of trouble," replied Farmer Brown's Boy. Then he showed his mother Bobby Coon's swollen leg with the can fast to it.

"Oh!" cried Mrs. Brown. "Poor little chap! This really is dreadful! We must get that can off right away."

"That's what I brought him up here for," replied Farmer Brown's Boy. "I couldn't get it off down in the woods where I found him. That can has got to be cut open. I guess you'll have to hold Bobby while I use the can opener."

Mrs. Brown looked a little bit doubtful. "Will he bite?" she asked.

"Not if you keep his head wrapped up so that he can't," replied Farmer Brown's Boy, as he brought the can opener. "I'll tie his hind legs together with a handkerchief so that he can't kick and scratch."

So Farmer Brown's Boy tied Bobby Coon's hind legs together. Then he wrapped a heavy cloth around Bobby's head in such a way that Bobby could breathe, but couldn't bite. Mrs. Brown held Bobby and Farmer Brown's Boy went to work with the can opener to cut that tin can. He did his best to be careful. But that leg was so swollen and tender that merely touching it made it ache. At last Farmer Brown's Boy got the can off. Bobby didn't even know it. You see that leg ached so and was so swollen that he didn't know when it was free from the can. Of course, he couldn't see, because his head was wrapped up. Then Farmer Brown's Boy carefully bathed that swollen leg, put healing ointment on it, and bound it with a strip of clean cloth. Then he took Bobby Coon out to the barn and put him in the pen he had built for Und' Billy Possum, but which Und' Billy had never seen the inside of.

Try it because new! Adopt it because easier!

IN a few months Chipso has been put to the test more often than many soaps which have been on the market for years. Millions of women have tried it once because it is new, but have adopted it for all time because it has made washday easier—amazingly easier!

Do try Chipso yourself! The moment you see the snow-white flakes and notice how swiftly they fluff into thick and wholly satisfactory suds, right then you know you have found a new kind of cleanser. You will be amazed that any soap could so quickly loosen dirt with little or no rubbing. The ease and complete thoroughness of Chipso's rinsing, and its safety for colors and fabrics—these will delight you and you will need to boil the clothes only once in a while, instead of every week.

Thousands every day try Chipso and then forever say goodbye to chipping and melting of old-fashioned soap, and to strong soaps and harsh powders that cause sneezing. Your grocer has a package waiting for you—it's big and economical! Blue with diagonal orange stripe!

Look for the blue package with the diagonal orange stripe—in two big sizes—at your grocer's—trial package, surprisingly large, too.

We're always strong for safety first, But, in a fog we fear the worst: A sudden smash and then a crash— A family in mourning. The foghorn you should learn to play. Then as you amble on your way, A sharp or flat shows where you're at. And sounds the needed warning.

I started out one foggy day To watch a noted golfer play: He played so well that sad to tell The other golfers shunned him. The fog was so dogged thick That when he gave the ball a flick It bounded back and hit him smack Between the eyes and stunned him.

EDUCATING THE CUSTOMER.

SOME six years ago, which as you may recall was before national prohibition had reared its hydra-headed front among us, the hero of my tale arrived in Chicago from his native Michigan hamlet on a cut-rate excursion. By trade he was a tinsmith but after three days spent in viewing the sights of the great city, both tinsmithing and the thoughts of his simple home-life palled on him. He resolved to enter one of the higher professions and, moreover, to practice it in the congenial hurly-burly of a metropolis.

He went back to Janesville and viewed his soldering-iron with disgust. He regarded it as a disgraceful tool that led only to the slavery of making coffee-pots, tin dippers and pails. What a hideous future and how rosy a one could be pictured if he were in white in a glittering place with men of money crowding in to purchase.

The tinsmith looked himself over critically. Being his own sole reviewer he decided upon reaching his hair over his temples in twin waves and studying the tending of a bar.

Now, there used to be an ancient "Bartender's Guide" that could be matched in age with Sam Devere's songbook. It presented a lot of information concerning drinks of which this generation wots nothing. For instance—to make a port wine sangaree, you took a shaker, filled it with shaved ice, the juice of half a lemon, etc. There were recipes for Rhine wine and sherry cobbler; blue blazers made in Mississippi River steamboat style; also various punches that had favor where the public was trying a secret poison on a slave.

The tinsmith absorbed all of this down to semicolons and commas. He learned the book by rote and had a double check on memorizing it. At the noon hour he would recite to prove his accuracy. At other times the apprentice might sneak upon him and say suddenly: "How do you make a port wine sangaree?"

Not ruffled, and as if confronting a flimsy customer, the tinsmith would go through with his formula.

At last he thought his education complete. He was off in front with $50 or so, which nerved him to resign and give his soldering iron to the apprentice. Then he boarded the train for Chicago.

He applied confidently to the manager of a large saloon, who employed some six or seven mixers. He gave a perjured account of his experience, and was accepted on trial and told to report at 6 o'clock the following morning. That night he could hardly sleep because the sangee specifications were ringing in his ears.

Going on watch he was approached by a rounder who hated sleep and who was looking for somebody who would listen to him. More to the point this visitor wanted a hunch on something to drink that would be salivating. The tinsmith's eye glittered. It was something like Cleopatra's notion of trying a secret poison on a slave.

All that morning the visitor stood on the tinsmith's watch. At noon his legs were of paper but he was hanging onto the bar valiantly with his finger tips. The Janesville recruit took off his apron and folded it with unconcern. Then he turned to his successor and remarked:

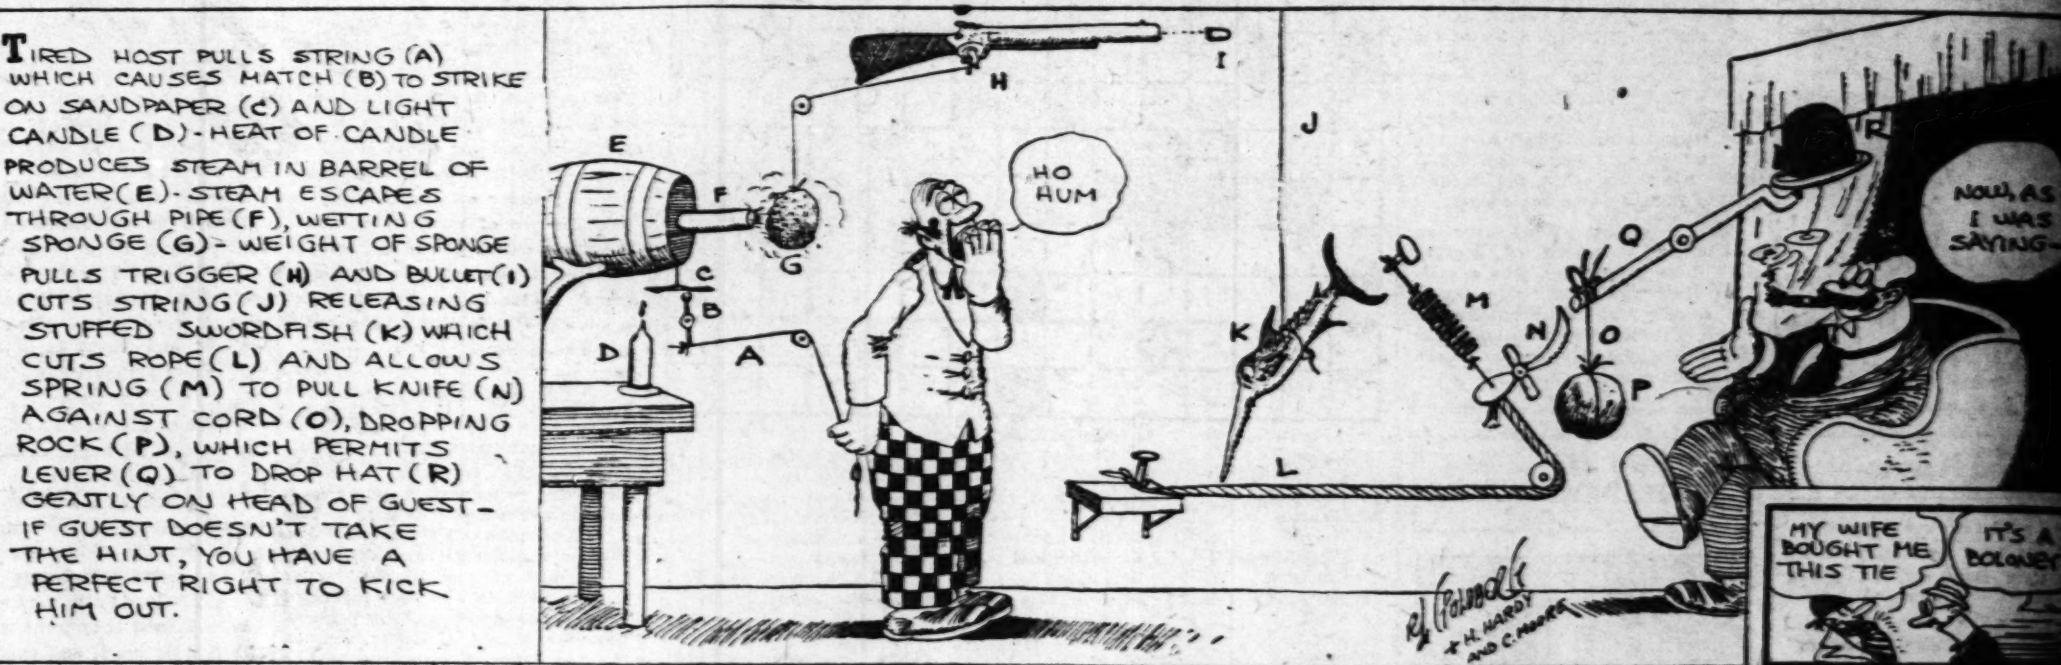

"Jerry, you take this party on. I've got him as far as page 43."

Sweeping Victory for Conservatives Results From British Elections—Asquith Is Defeated.

BALDWIN LIKELY TO LEAD CABINET

MacDonald, Returned to Commons, Probably Will Be Leader of Opposition; Lady Astor Elected.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Prime Minister MacDonald's Labor-Socialist Government which sowed a wind of suspicion by playing with the Moscow Communists has now reaped a whirlwind of defeat.

The Conservative party's gains in Wednesday's election show a clear working majority of at least 140 votes assured. This is taken to prove that this country will stand for no trucking with Communism.

Macdonald's minority government, whether forged or real, proved to be the decisive factor, not by rubbing the Labor party of its assured votes, but by bringing to the polls every man and woman holding an anti-socialist vote. Women, who had been newly enfranchised, as well as suffragettes of the old school, swarmed to the polling booths yesterday in unprecedented numbers, laboring under a strong emotion, based upon the hostile fear of Bolshevism and aggravated by resentment at any foreign interference with Great Britain's domestic affairs.

All of the Labor party's success in office, or Ramsay MacDonald's personal popularity, could not stem the tide of this emotional reaction.

The standing of the parties at 4 o'clock showed: Conservatives, 337; Labor, 137; Liberals, 77; others, 12. Total, 563. The total membership of the House is 615.

In this sweeping political change, the Liberal party has sunk to the weakest position it has experienced since the realignment of British political parties more than 20 years ago. At the time of the reform bill.

The standing of the parties at 4:30 p. m. was: Conservatives, 337; Labor, 145; Liberals, 40; other parties, 12. Total, 534, out of a membership of 615.

This tabulation showed that the Conservative party had made a gain of 146 seats, the Labor party had suffered a net loss of 40 seats while the Liberal party had suffered a loss of 144 seats.

Laborites Made Votes, Lost Seats. Despite their huge majority in number of seats, the Conservatives had polled only seven votes to each of Labor's five in the 540 constituencies which had been fully tabulated late this evening.

The total of popular votes even then was almost 1,000,000 votes greater than the total for all of the contests last year, Labor having increased its strength by about 700,000 votes, although losing seats.

In the 540 contests fully tabulated up to this evening, the total vote was 15,451,546 out of a possible electorate of 15,775,258. Of these, 7,172,165 voted for Conservative candidates, 6,139,456 for Labor, 2,318,932 voted for the Liberals, while more than 250,000 votes were cast for candidates other than those of the three main parties.

In the general election of 1923, the total number of votes polled was 14,457,480, of which the Conservatives polled 6,505,777, the Laborites 4,258,767, and the Liberals 4,299,121.

Between breakfast and lunch time today, ten constituencies which went against Conservative in 1923 had transferred their allegiance to that party. Even of the Conservative gains, coming from the Liberals and the other three main parties.

The Conservatives picked up three seats in Wiltshire in the southwest, and their two additional gains came from Somerset in the west, Dorset in the south, and Cardiff in the industrial south-west.
